FAVOR WHEAT POOL PLAN TO HELP FARMER

Coolidge Relief Proposal Combines Best Features in Canadian System

U. S. TO SUPPLY CREDIT

Outstanding Effect Will Be to Promote Feeling of Confidence on Farms

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Further details of the administration plan to solve the agricultural surplus problem have become available. They reveal that the scheme is not untried, for it combines some of the best features of the Canadian wheat pool system which has been successfully operated in the last few years. Adaptation of American methods will require many changes and the American government will be able to do things for the farmer which private bankers are not always able to do in Canada.

In short, the federal government, while applying banking principles, can render a supply of credit which private bankers could hardly undertake, though ultimately when the banking world sees how little risk is attached to the plan it would not be surprising to see private banking operations take over the credit system proposed to be set up by the new plan.

At present the Canadian farmer can take his wheat to the pool and get a dollar a bushel. When the wheat is selling around $1.15 a bushel this is a large enough proportion for him to finance his overhead expenses until the wheat is finally sold. It is estimated that American farmers under the present system have rarely been able to get more than 75 cents a bushel for their wheat. The net result of the Canadian system is that last year $1.53 was returned per bushel to the Canadian farmer who went into the pool as compared with $1.35 which the American farmer secured operating also under a protective tariff.

STABILIZATION BOARDS

The exact operation of the new plan will, of course, undergo many changes before a final draft of a bill is ready, but generally speaking, the idea is to set up the stabilization boards for each crop, which boards or corporations would be subsidiaries of the co-operative organizations. The assumption is that the co-operatives would control the largest part of the crop. The stabilization boards would step in as a wately owned it could decide for itself at what price it would buy in the surplus. Its decision would be based on statistical surveys and the government's information machinery would be at its disposal.

The plan is to buy the crop at an average price but simply at a maximum of what the producer ought to get. Thus while cotton sold at an average of 24 cents for a few years and then suddenly the bottom dropped out of the market, the cotton farmers began selling at 11 cents when everybody knew that the wheat was worth at least 16 cents if the farmers could organize themselves sufficiently to hold on.

PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT

In other words, had the stabilization board been in existence, the farmers' surplus would have been bought in at 16 cents which would have had a psychological effect on the price situation at once.

When the whole plan might have been put in effect heretofore in the United States if any of the co-operative pools had controlled a majority of the crop at the wheat pool does in Canada. To correct this weakness, the administration plan in effect supplants the co-operative movement by giving the stabilization board a time of credit that will make membership in a co-operative organization attractive.

If the stabilization corporation should over-buy, it would, in turn, call on its profits of a preceding year to make up for its possible error in judgment. But the stabilization board would hardly buy a crop at a price which they knew very well could not be approached later on in the final sale. In other words, the stabilization corporation would do what the panicky farmer would not do—dump his product on the market at a sacrifice price but would be enabled to get a price that would be commensurate with what the value of the crop really was, based on accurate data as to world production.

Washington—Burdened with the vexations and cares of international and domestic questions, the nation's capital looked forward Saturday to a brief respite on Easter day.

Kansas City—(P)—Rabbi Harry H. Mayer urged Jews not to condemn United States Senator James A. Reed for defending Henry Ford in the million dollar libel suit brought by Aaron Sapiro, counsel for Cooperative Marketing associations, in an address here Friday night.

"We must not forget what Senator Reed has done for the Jews," he said. "I plead with you, however, to remember, before passing judgment, that Senator Reed always has shown a magnificent freedom in religious and racial matters."

Rabbi Mayer said the senator had written him: "Whatever the outcome of this case may be I shall continue in the future as I have in the past, defending those who are assailed because of race or religion."

COOLIDGE DENIES SPLIT IN CABINET ON CHINESE ISSUE

Reports That Kellogg Will Resign Post Declared Erroneous at White House

Washington—(P)—President Coolidge has set at rest published reports that his cabinet is split over the administration's Chinese policy, that Secretary Kellogg proposed to resign and that Secretary Hoover had been selected to succeed him.

It was said at the White House that these reports were erroneous and it was added that even if Mr. Kellogg resigned, Mr. Hoover would not be appointed as head of the state department.

The president was represented as being somewhat concerned over the reports, which gained wide circulation in the capital, that his cabinet was at odds over the Chinese situation and a denial was issued Friday. At that time the reports concerning the two secretaries also were said to be unfounded.

In contradicting the report on Chinese policy, the White House made clear that the present cabinet and each secretary was held responsible and given full charge of the affairs of his department.

Coroner's Jury Is Impaneled to Investigate Shooting at Waunakee

Madison—(P)—Formal investigation of the shooting of William R. McCloskey by his estranged, crippled wife, will be conducted by a coroner's jury at Waunakee Monday.

McCloskey was slain after he was said to have threatened his wife. Mary McCloskey because efforts at reconciliation were unsuccessful.

The coroner's jury was impaneled at the order of District Attorney Glenn D. Roberts, following a preliminary investigation by the district attorney, Coroner W. E. Campbell and Sheriff Fred Finn.

Mrs. McCloskey was said to be highly regarded in the community in which she lived, having rung in a church choir for some time, and she was not held after the slaying. Members of the jury are Matt Endres, Peter Ubersetzky, Charles McWatty, John Michael, George Stehr and Joseph Koltas all of Waunakee.

McCloskey had been sought for 15 months in connection with the theft of clothing from the state penitentiary at Waupun where he previously had served a term for forgery. He was in the air service during the world war.

THEY BROKE WORLD AIR RECORD

At the end of their long air trail Bert Acosta and Clarence Chamberlain, who broke the world's non-stop flight record, are pictured here with their overjoyed wives when they had landed on Long Island N. Y. after more than 31 hours in the air. Left to right are Mrs. Acosta, Acosta, Chamberlain, Mrs. Chamberlain and G. M. Bellanca, designer of the Wright monoplane the two men flew. ## Claims Bandits Slugged Him, Set His Home Afire

Washington—(P)—Stating that he was slugged by two unknown assailants, knocked unconscious and robbed of $104 and a gold watch, and that he was left on the floor while the attackers emptied a kerosene lamp on the floor and lit it, George Dibbel, 56, living alone here, is at an Ashland hospital where it is expected it may be necessary to amputate both of his legs at the knee because of the severe burns.

The exact time of the supposed attack is unknown. Dr. B. Schlossman, surgeon in charge, stated that he was called Thursday, while Dibbel says the attack took place on Wednesday. He was taken to Ashland late Friday.

According to Dibbel who, because of the smoke which he inhaled and the flames in which he was lying, is scarcely able to see or talk, he was at his home awaiting the arrival of his uncle. Hearing someone entering the door, to which his back was turned and thinking it was his uncle, he did not turn around. He charges that he was hit on the back of the head and knocked to the floor and that whoever attacked him stole his money and watch and then fired the house. He says that he was found by his uncle who came to the house when he saw the flames.

Dr. Schlossman Saturday morning stated that he placed no credence in the man's story, while Sheriff Halmer Frostman said that he had not heard of the attack or robbery until called by the Associated Press.

Dibbel's wife, who is in Chicago, and his son, Clinton, Wisconsin Rapids, have been notified.

EIGHT PERSONS DIE IN CHICAGO BLAST

Bodies Are Burned Beyond Recognition When Four Buildings Are Destroyed

Chicago—(P)—Eight persons were killed and their bodies burned beyond recognition, and four buildings were razed, the result of an explosion, followed by fire at W. Harrison-st and S. Trumbull-ave early Saturday.

The dead, members of two families were:

Barnette Levin, his wife and their two sons; Harry Sokolsky his wife, a son, Samuel, and a daughter.

Police, the corner's office and the fire department immediately began an investigation of the cause of the explosion, which apparently was due to the ignition of a gas pocket in a tailor shop operated by Levin. The Levin's had living quarters above the shop, as did the Sokolskys above their dry goods store adjoining.

BOARD OF TRADE BARS ARMOUR GRAIN COMPANY

Chicago—(P)—The Armour Grain Co., one of the once vast holdings of the Armour's, Saturday disappeared from the Chicago Board of Trade, in whose "list" it once was feared and respected. An order of the board of trade suspending the company became effective Saturday.

In the morning the concern sold as high as 5,000,000 bushels of cash wheat in a single day. It was originated in 1890. A special committee of the board trade declared "testimony" of the company's connections with the defunct Grain Marketing Co. "clearly shows a wrongful act for which we deem the Armour Grain Co. responsible."

KINGSTON WOMAN SHARES IN BIG RACINE ESTATE

Three other defendants who have stood trial have likewise been acquitted.

162 WRITS ARE RETURNED BY SPECIAL JURY

Forest-co Investigation Group Adjourns Subject to Call by Court

Crandon—(P)—The special grand jury, of Forest-co, already has returned 162 indictments, charging crimes ranging from stealing potatoes from the poor to bank robbery.

With scores of cases pending on indictments previously returned by the special grand jury, convened last August, the group of 39 true bills returned late Thursday assures a busy session of circuit court next May. Judge William B. Quinlan, who has declared he has been trying for 15 years to make the law respected in Forest-co will preside.

After several week's work the grand jury has adjourned, but is subject to call any time before next August under the state statutes, which provides such a body may operate for one year.

The cleanup of Forest-co follows the death blows dealt two years ago to the political machine which for 20 years has dominated the county government, and also the city of Crandon, since its establishment about 10 years ago. The grand jury, seldom resorted to in Wisconsin and only to meet an unusual situation, has uncovered an amazing condition of corruption and law violation. Its findings have thus far hit at both the county judge and his predecessor, the municipal judge, eight members of the county board, and six city officials.

ONCE LUMBER CENTER

Situated in northern Wisconsin, the town was once a great lumber region, Forest-co, according to the evidence on which the grand jury acted, was dominated by a political machine headed by J. A. Walsh, former district attorney, and for years county judge.

The machine elected men to the county board and county offices, and obtained control of the council and many city offices when Crandon, which has 1,600 residents, grew from a village to a city. During the regime of Governor Francis McGovern a special investigation of the conditions in the county was made after it was charged $35,000 of public funds had been stolen. Several paid fines, one person was imprisoned and others were freed when the money was returned.

WALSH DEFEATED

The spring election of 1925 saw the defeat of Walsh by S. J. Conway, and displacement of Walsh men on the county board and the city council. Then came the grand jury investigation asked by the county board with Walsh, Mayor Foster Himes of Crandon, and District Attorney George S. Dawson scoffing at the need for an inquiry. Former Congressman David G. Casson of Oconto, was first named special prosecutor, and he was succeeded by G. F. Clifford of Green Bay.

A cleanup of liquor conditions in Armstrong Creek and other isolated sections of the county where moonshiners, some of whom had sought refuge here from the law in Kentucky, operated unhindered, was attempted.

SOLONS LOSE BOOST IN PAY BY 48,000 VOTES

Madison—(P)—Unofficial returns received by the secretary of state's office from all the counties in the state except Lincoln-co show that the constitutional amendment to increase legislators salaries from $300 to $1,000, was defeated by 48,000 votes, at the spring election held April 5. The vote was 127,653 for the amendment and 175,577 against.

The amendment providing that the state may tax forest and mineral lands differently from other property was passed by 38,000 votes. There were 178,309 votes for the amendment, and 140,721 against it.

MRS. DAWES RECOVERING FROM MINOR OPERATION

Chicago—(P)—Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the vice president, submitted to a minor operation Saturday at a Chicago hospital, after which her physicians, the Doctors Lester Frankenthal, Sr., and Junior, stated that she had completely recovered from the effects of an anesthetic and that her temperature, pulse and respiration were normal. General Dawes was with his wife during the operation and planned to remain with her indefinitely.

BODY OF MISSING MAN FOUND AT IRON RIVER

NO SUNDAY GAMES FOR UNION GROVE, PRESIDENT WARNS

Racine—(P)—President John Martin of the village of Union Grove, Saturday issued a public notice warning persons against the desecration of the Sabbath through the playing of or attending public baseball games and other entertainments.

He cites the fact that the baseball and other entertainments on Sunday constituted the issue in the last election at which he was elected president. In explaining his stand he says: "The state law prohibits the holding of public baseball games on Sunday. Those taking part and those attending such games on the first day of the week are subject to arrest and fines. I am hereby giving public notice that I shall use all the means of the law to provide for the enforcement of the statute against Sunday baseball within the limits of the village of Union Grove."

The announcement is expected to cause consternation in the ranks of the lovers of amateur baseball in Racine.

LEEVE BREAK FLOODS THOUSANDS OF ACRES IN MISSOURI REGION

Heaviest Rain Fall on Record Inundates Streets of New Orleans

Cape Girardeau, Mo.—(P)—The Mississippi river levee, 25 miles south of Charleston, Missouri, in Mississippi-co broke early Saturday and water was inundating thousands of acres in the lowlands in that vicinity. A heavy wind, lapping over the top of the newly constructed embankment, washed out a breach in the levee and within a few minutes a gap 100 yards in length had been opened.

Four hundred men that had been working to hold this stretch were called to safety and no effort will be made to repair the break, engineers said.

The break occurred at a point near Wolf Island, where forces had been concentrated for the past week in an effort to hold the levee, which was built late last year. Wolf Island is almost directly across the river from Hickman, Ky.

HEAVIEST RAIN FALL

New Orleans—(P)—Fourteen and one hundredth inches of rain fell at New Orleans Friday night, the weather bureau reported Saturday. The rainfall breaks the record, which is 9.22 inches. Hundreds of blocks in the residential sections were flooded with only a few persons were unable to get downtown to business.

Business, largely suspended for the Easter holidays, came to a virtual standstill and many of the thoroughfares, which are high and dry under normal rains, were under four inches of water. The water was so deep that high wheeled wagons able to penetrate their bay-like fastnesses. Families were marooned in their homes. Virtually every section of the city except certain high portions of the French quarter and certain peaks in the business and uptown sections of the city were under water.

As the pumping system gradually gained control of the situation, the business section was freed of water, but hundreds of blocks in the uptown residential section remained under water at 1 o'clock today.

ALLOW RAILROAD TO BUY NEW EQUIPMENT

Judge Wilkerson Approves Expenditures of Over Million by St. Paul Road

Chicago—(P)—Judge James H. Wilkerson in federal court, Friday approved application of receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway to make expenditures of more than $1,000,000 for new equipment and improvements.

One of the largest items in the receivers-application called for an expenditure of about $425,000 for the purchase of the most modern type of gas-electric cars to replace steam trains on short passenger runs. Four leading manufacturers have been asked to submit bids, and it was indicated the cars could be purchased for about $12,500 each.

These cars, when put into operation will replace steam train service. The service between Madison, Wis., and Marquette, Iowa, and Beloit and Madison will be affected by the change.

The new equipment will be of all steel construction and according to tests conducted by the Milwaukee system, may be operated for one half the cost of steam service.

Other items included rebuilding and railroad bridge at Chillicothe, Mo., at an estimated cost of $47,500, construction of an addition to the power house and machine shop at Channing, Mich., to cost $21,000. Several other items for replacement and improvements between Ramsey, Wis., and Rondout, Ill., were also approved.

100 RADICALS ARE KILLED IN CANTON FIGHT

Destroyer Preble Returns Fire of Natives Along Yangtze; Sailor Hurt

ROUND UP RED LEADERS

Fighting Continues as Canton Government Disarms Unionists in City

Washington—(P)—Another American naval vessel has found it necessary to use her guns in Chinese waters, the navy department was informed Saturday in a dispatch which reported that the destroyer Preble had fired on Chinese on the north bank of the Yangtze river, opposite Kiangyin fort. One enlisted man on the Preble received a flesh wound in the leg during firing from the shore directed at the ship.

Admiral Williams, commanding American forces in Chinese waters, advised the department that the Preble was proceeding from Shanghai to Hankow when it was fired upon by the Chinese soldiers. The destroyer returned the fire bringing her four, and three inch batteries and machine guns into action. The Chinese, however, continued to fire at the Preble for several minutes after the destroyer's heavier guns had been turned on them.

Capture of an American woman missionary and seizure of American property at Wuhu were reported in Saturday's news from China.

Miss Mary L. Craig of Philadelphia, is said to have fallen into the hands of Chinese bandits in Yunnan province, while trying to reach the coast. Dispatches give no clue as to her whereabouts or possible fate.

Cantonese troops arriving at Wuhu, above Nanking, seized the American hospital and other foreign property in the face of protests.

100 RADICALS KILLED

Hankow—(P)—Fighting and shooting throughout Canton, in which about 100 radicals were killed, were reported in a wireless dispatch from that city, bearing Friday's date, received here Saturday.

The fighting is said to have occurred while conservative forces were rounding up and disarming many radical unionists by orders of the Canton government.

The headquarters, from which it is alleged the Chinese strikers were directed, was raided by officials and others on the promises were arrested. A number of rifles were seized.

Utmost precautions were taken at Shamen, the foreign quarter of Canton, to prevent the disturbances resulting from the raids spreading to the bridges dividing the concessions from the native city.

EXTREMISTS UNDER FIRE

Shanghai—(P)—The Cantonese extremists at Hankow must yield, or the moderates will launch a definite and thorough drive to oust the communists and establish the Cantonese capital at Nanking until China is unified.

The declaration was made Saturday by General Pai Tsung-chi, Cantonese commander for the eastern area, in a formal statement to a conference of representatives of the vernacular press.

The question must be decided, he said, before conferring with the military drive northward undertaking a campaign on a large scale for establishment of the position among the powers to which China was entitled.

DRAW NEW NOTE

Paris—(P)—The representatives of the five powers in China have recommended to their governments that they be authorized to draft a new identical note on the Nanking incident in reply to the communications from Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, which they regard as unsatisfactory.

The note is expected to be ready within five or six days. It is understood it will make it absolutely clear that Great Britain, the United States, France, Japan and Italy are united in demanding that the lives and property rights of their nationals in China be protected and that reparation be made for the damage suffered.

Y. M. C. A. Debt Reaches Back To World Conflict

(Monday evening the Y. M. C. A. will begin a week's campaign to raise $25,000 with which to pay off its indebtedness. The question has been raised as to how this debt was incurred. F. J. Harwood, president of the association, gives the reason in the following article.)

BY F. J. HARWOOD
President of the Y. M. C. A.

Why is the Y. M. C. A. in debt? To that story correctly, we need to go back to the war, when the boys were called away from us to work in our camps and on the other side. We found it difficult to keep our organization up to standard. As an illustration, our whole Employed Staff was called out of our Association work in to work and, any man in business knows what that means to an organization. We could not function 100 per cent. We have no complaint to make because we were doing the thing that was necessary for the country to do at that time. Some joined the colors, others went into "Y" work over seas, and others into American camps. This includes our general secretary who was called after the Armistice to go over and help maintain the morale of the boys while they were waiting to go home.

After the war, when we got to functioning normally, we found that an opportunity opened up for us to purchase the corner lot, West of the Association building, from the Masonic Organization. We tried at that time to purchase this without indebtedness and while the canvass for friends dragged somewhat we cleaned it up. Later on we found the work demanded more room, especially for boys and dormitories, full size handball court, and for tennis courts and athletic activities. We built the addition on the West Side of the building over the swimming pool, when building cost was at the peak. And while we figured to do this without indebtedness, we found it impossible. In anticipation of the additional revenue coming from the dormitories we went on and finished the work and some indebtedness has stayed with us and has been a handicap for several years.

We have come to the point now where our income reaches our budget, but the $1,800.00 that we have to pay for interest drags us a little farther from the goal. The board of directors in canvassing the matter decided the

COMMITTEE MEETS AGAIN TO STUDY LIGHT BIDS

Four contractors have submitted bids. They are Art-Killgren Electric company, Langstadt Meyer company, Langstadt Electric company of Appleton and the Valley Construction company. Each bidder has specified a different type of ornamental post and the committee will recommend one of the bids to the common council at the meeting Tuesday night.

MAGAZINES ACCEPT TEACHER'S MANUSCRIPT

Two poems and an article by Miss Olga Achtenhagen, instructor of Journalism and rhetoric at Lawrence college, have been accepted by publishers. Miss Achtenhagen taught English in Appleton high school for two years and is an alumna of Lawrence college.

"What Price Glory" was the title of the article printed in "Hunters' Creek Exchange" in April, and the poems were "Dawn" and "Fading Moon" which will appear in "Education" and "1927 Greek Anthology" respectively.

time had come when we must clear that up. So we have started in for the $25,000 to clean up all the indebtedness. $5,000, of which has been used for replacements and upkeep on the building, which is necessary with a building that is twelve years old and has done strenuous work from the time it was opened.

We make no apologies for this indebtedness because of the work we have been doing. We feel that Appleton is a better place to live in and especially a better place for young men and boys than it could be without the "Y" and have we any greater asset to work for than our young people. And by young people we mean the boys, the young men, and young women—because it is a matter of interest that the Association is giving one day a week from the use of their building to help the Women's club for the work that they are doing in the work of swimming and bowling alleys, which is much appreciated and which we are glad to do.

GOVERNOR'S NOTE AND HIGHWAY BILL WEEK'S HIGH SPOTS

Legislators Getting Primed for Fireworks in Next Week's Session

Madison—(UP)—A fifteen page manuscript from the chief executive's office was the storm center of an otherwise quiet legislature this week. Around the content of the typewritten pages, containing a special message from Governor Zimmerman to both houses of the legislature, a wave of protest broke from certain members of senate and assembly.

A bill creating a new highway commission, under the authorship of Senator Schumann, also provided room for debate lasting several hours in the senate, but opponents were successful in preventing a vote. The matter will come up for consideration next week as special order of business.

The bill would abolish the present highway commission and create a three man, full time commission all appointed by the governor. An assembly resolution asking for information as to "what errors, if any, there are in the financial report of March 23 submitted by the state treasurer, secretary of state and the governor" was adopted after discussion.

The same body also went on record as favoring repeal of the Volstead act when a resolution asking congress to call a convention of states to consider such action was adopted.

The people's vote in refusing to approve a $500 salary boost for legislators, the lower house refused to raise the salaries of town assessors and members of boards of review.

Senatorial action concerned itself with the passage of numerous minor bills and the engrossment of others. The upper house refused to override the governor's veto of a $55,000 appropriation for a cell block at the state penitentiary.

Salaries of supreme court justices were ordered increased, from $5,500 to $10,000 per year. The special message from the governor, however, was the outstanding development of the week. Beginning when the assembly adjourned at midnight with confusion reaching voluminous proportions and extending until the same hour, quieted down, heard the complete message twenty-four hours later, the document proved to be the instigator of floor and aisle-line debate.

4 SLIGHTLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH ON E. WISCONSIN-AVE

William Vils, Kaukauna, Arrested by Officers for Reckless Driving

Four persons were injured, none seriously, in an automobile collision at 940 Friday night at the corner of N. Drew-st and E. Wisconsin-ave. They are William Schinke, 17, 1029 N. Morrison-st, lacerations about the head and back of neck; Joseph Hoolihan, 202 Whitney-st, Kaukauna, bruises about the left leg and head; Arthur Wiedenmayr, Kaukauna, bruises about the right leg and head; Leonard Ely, 1315 S. Jefferson-st, dislocated shoulder.

Five more persons escaped uninjured except for slight bruises. The automobiles were driven by Lewis Lyons, 606 E. South River-st, and William Vils, Kaukauna. The latter was arrested for reckless driving.

Vils, who was headed north on N. Drew-st, was accompanied by Wiedenmayr, Hoolihan, Miss Ely, Margaret Stadler, 1303 S. Jefferson-st, May Duhaime, 1229 N. Wisconsin-ave, and Viola Bayer, 503 E. McKinley-st. Lyons had one passenger in his car, William Schinke.

The latter was taken to the office of a physician by Ernest H. Miller, 412 W. Summer-st. Another passing motorist took Miss Ely to a physician. Hoolihan and Wiedenmayr, although injured, went to their homes.

Vils was arrested for reckless driving when police officers were told by witnesses that he had been driving up N. Drew-st at a high rate of speed, it was reported.

Both cars were damaged considerably. The front wheel of the Lyons machine was broken off, the turning board was smashed, the windshield was broken and the motor was shoved back.

The Vils car had the front bumper smashed, the right fender and running board broken, the top torn and the left rear tire pulled off the wheel.

A catch basin at the northwest corner of N. Drew-st and E. Wisconsin-ave also was smashed. Vils was arraigned Saturday morning in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg, pleaded guilty, and was fined $10 and costs. He paid.

WILL APPOINT TWO TO POLICE FORCE

Another Motorcycle Officer
Will Be Selected by Department
Next Week

Appointment of two officers to the police department by the police and fire commission is expected next Monday, following announcement Saturday of the results of examinations conducted last week by the commission.

Seven applicants for the two vacancies on the department took the examination. The successful candidates are Lester Van Roy, 421 E. Pacific-st, and Gus B. Hersekorn, 1080 W. Eighth-st, with grades of 96 per cent and 94 per cent, respectively.

One will be appointed a motorcycle officer and the other a patrolman, according to Chief George T. Prim. As both can ride a motorcycle, each will be given an opportunity to display his ability as a rider, and the one judged the "best" motorcycle officer will be selected as motorcycle officer. The other will work a "beat".

The addition of the new officers will increase the police force to 18 men, including the chief.

Although there will be two regular motorcycle officers, there now will be five men on the force who can ride a motorcycle. Besides the present rider, Officer F. P. Arndt, and the two new officers, Mechanicians Albert P. Deltgen and Carl Radtke have been motorcycle officers, and can resume such duties at any time.

Besides taking a civil service examination, an applicant for a place on the police force is judged on his general appearance, build, handwriting, etc. He also must pass a physical examination.

STUDENT COUNCIL WOULD CHANGE GOVERNMENT PLAN

Five departments—social, finance, publications, co-operation, and student government are included in the suggested plan of student government discussed at a meeting of the student senate at Lawrence college this week. Each section would have a departmental secretary who would be in charge of work presented to it.

The method of election to the senate would be to choose seven members from the student body. From this group a president and vice president would be elected by the student body. The senate then will name the presidents of the various boards of control on the campus.

LEGISLATURE HAS PUT 33 NEW LAWS ON STATUTE BOOKS

Governor Has Used His Pen
Quite a Number of Times
Since Session Opened

Madison—(UP)—While members of the legislature considered a possible reply to the governor's message charging "dilatory tactics" had delayed legislation, a survey of the legislature's accomplishments—the bills finally passed showed 33 new laws on the Wisconsin statute books.

This number of new measures have been signed by the governor since the opening of the session January 12. Twenty-six measures have been approved since the beginning of March when seven measures had been signed. Two bills have been vetoed by the governor and three have been recalled from his office by joint resolution of both houses, in order that amendments may be made before they are finally approved.

Four bills were on the governor's list Saturday awaiting the executive's action. The bills vetoed are:

- 36 S making an appropriation for completion of the north cell block at the state penitentiary.
- 31 S making an appropriation to reimburse former state treasurer, Henry Johnson for loss in the Jackson Bank case.

New laws on the Wisconsin statute books, in addition to those previously reviewed include four court bills, one creating a first municipal court of Washington and three relating to the terms of court in the eighth, sixth and eleventh circuit courts.

The others provide: For acceptance of certain records of the United States Land office by the state land commission.

Penalties for and definition of slander of building and loan associations. An emergency appropriation for the state industrial home for women and the state school for the blind.

For abolition of the practice of sending highway maps with automobile licenses.

For abolition of the legislative-visiting committee after this session. This committee visits and makes reports upon state institutions.

Filing of articles of incorporation for railroad companies in certain cases, to permit reorganization in this state of the C. M. & St. P. (Now Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific) railroad. Creation of the town of Cook's Valley.

Exemption from the personal property tax of goods stored in commercial warehouses.

Substitution of the term "county home" for "poor house" in the statutes.

Prohibiting the use of poison bait for taking any animals except pests. For construction of extra vault space in the state treasurer's office.

Penalties for responsibility in forest fires and strengthening the law relating to those fires.

Exemption of deputy district attorneys from civil service, and relating to district attorneys in counties having a city of the first class.

Appropriating $20,000 to the conservation commission for a certain portion of its duties.

Changed dates for the filing of bonds by county depositories.

For slight alteration of the method of filing claims for gas tax refunds.

For appointment in city districts where wanted, of an examining and licensing school superintendent in addition to the regular superintendent. Erection of raise or split bridges on state trunk highways where federal regulations require them. For election, by the board instead of appointment by the county board, of county highway committee. For assessment by the county against the town, city or village of up to 40 per cent of the cost of improvement of highways in such municipality, providing that such tax amount to no more than $1,000 a year.

TOWN CONTESTS FOR RURAL SCHOOLS TO BE HELD ON MAY 13

Events Will Be Conducted at Designated Centers in Each Township

Town contests for rural schools in spelling, arithmetic, penmanship and athletics will be held at designated centers in the county on Friday, May 13, according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools.

Diploma examinations for common schools will be conducted Saturday, May 14, and Saturday, May 21, thus making the May 13 date necessary for the town contests, Mr. Meating pointed out.

Centers have been selected according to their geographical locations, the condition of the roads leading to the schools, and facilities at the various schools.

Contests for each town will be held at the following schools:

Black Creek, Fairview school; Bovina, Shiocton, Buchanan, Combined Locks; Center, Pleasant Dale school; Cicero, Cicero Graded school; Dale, Dale graded school; Deer Creek, Coffeyville school; Ellington, Stephensville, Freedom, Sunny Corners school; Grand Chute, Woodlawn school.

Greenville, Pleasant Corners school; Hortonville, Knowledge Hill school; Kaukauna, Oak Grove school; Liberty, Three Pines school; Maple Creek, Golden Hill school; Maine, Leeman; Oneda, Silver Summit school; Osborn, Pioneer school; Seymour, Woodland school; Vandenberg, Horns school.

Three judges and three alternates for each town contest will be selected by the teachers of the schools in each town before May 13. The teacher of the school where the contest will be held is made chairman of the committee in charge for that town.

Winners of the town contests will compete for county honors in the county field meet, made up only of athletic events, to be held Thursday, May 25, in Appleton.

"Competitive sports furnish the best means of teaching good sportsmanship," Mr. Meating said. "The sooner a boy or girl learns to be a good sport, the sooner he or she will become a good citizen. If schools have any real goal outside the daily class work, it is the teaching of citizenship."

Mr. Meating has asked that pupils be taught the code of the Sportsman's Brotherhood. It reads:

"The Code of honor of a sportsman is that—

"He keeps the rules; he keeps faith with his comrades and play the game for his side; he keeps himself fit.

"He keeps his temper; he keeps from hitting a man when he is down; he keeps his pride under in victory.

"He keeps a stout heart in defeat accepted in good grace.

"He keeps a sound soul and a clean mind in a healthy body."

Athletic events will include the standing broad jump, running broad jump, rope climb, relay race, girls' baseball throw, baseball throw for accuracy, and balancing test for girls.

Teachers of the various schools have been urged to schedule "pep" meetings. School cheers will be adopted, stunts will be practiced, and each group of students will view with the other for "pep" honors at the county contests.

LIBERTY APPROPRIATES $500 FOR HIGHWAY WORK

An appropriation of $500 for improvement of the highway known as the secondary trunk line, leading from the village of Hortonville to state trunk highway 54 between New London and Shiocton, recently, was made by the town board of Liberty. The board also adopted a resolution asking the county board for an additional appropriation of $500.

The road commences at Hortonville at the intersection with state trunk highway 26, and runs north to highway 54. The improvement will be started at the north end, and will be

PUMP 48,470,000 GALLONS OF WATER

Volume in February Is Greater Than for Corresponding Month Last Year

There were 48,470,000 gallons of water pumped at the Appleton water plant in February, according to the monthly report of A. J. Hall, plant superintendent. This is approximately 6,000,000 gallons more than in the same month last year when 42,530,000 were pumped. The average daily pumpage was 1,640,000 gallons as compared with 1,518,000 gallons in February 1926. The oil engines were run 418 hours and consumed 3,704 gallons of oil. The electric motors were operated 29 hours and consumed 2,983.25 kilowatt hours. The bacteria removal efficiency of the plant was 99.99 per cent.

Limits Are Removed From Vision By 'Electric Eyes'

New York—Human eyesight's range lifted electrically to 200 miles—to 2000 miles—across oceans and continents—that is television, brought by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. scientists to what might be called "preliminary perfection."

How far the electrical extension of eyesight will go by means of the mechanism just placed in actual operation here, no one yet knows.

At one end of the line between two given points, "electric eyes" see persons and things placed in front of them—still or in motion. At the other end, what these "electric eyes" see is reproduced in a miniature on a small screen much as a movie film reproduces motion pictures in a theater.

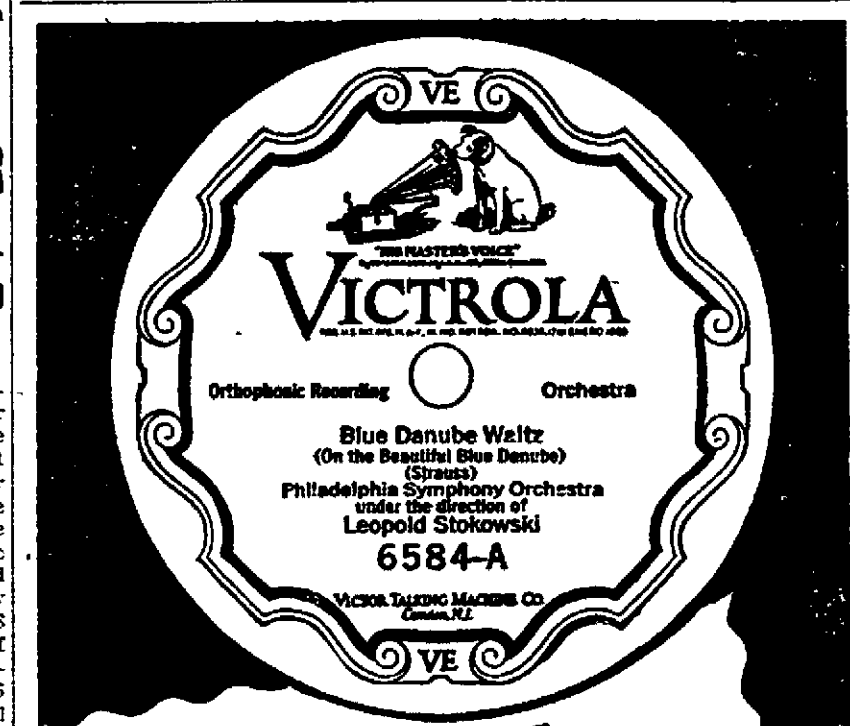

Both the seeing and the reproduction are continuous.

Either telephone wires or radio can be used as the means of transmission. Billions of "electrons"—infinitesimal units of electrical life—form a flowing current through the telephone wires or through the ether. On this current, eyesight travels—the human being of whom this winged eyesight becomes a part and parcel sitting spellbound the while.

The "electric eyes" of the television apparatus are photo-electric cells, which resemble radio set tubes of huge size. These cells are mounted in a cabinet, before which is the scene to be transmitted. In the first formal demonstration, this scene was Hebert Hoover, secretary of commerce, sitting in a chair and holding a telephone, over which he was talking.

Behind the "electric eyes," a dynamo is mounted. It turns a perforated disc. By the arrangement of the perforations and the disc's speed, the subject on which the "eyes" are gazing is swept constantly by beams of reddish electric light, moving across the field of vision of the "electric eyes" in fixed jumps or bands and then repeating the process—all at dizzy speed.

second. To the human eye it is there continuously.

The television mechanism is of limited performance so far. The "electric eyes" at one end can "see" successfully only a close-up subject. At the other end, reproduction is satisfactory only on a very small screen.

Synchronizing the sending and receiving apparatus is difficult. Enormous amplification of the transmitting impulses is necessary.

But it has been shown that television will work. Scientists will devote money and time without limit to expanding the scope of its usefulness.

MAYOR OUTLINES ECONOMY PROGRAM FOR NEW COUNCIL

Bank Stock Taxes Add Immensely to Expenses of Operating

A program of strictest economy has been mapped out for the new council by Mayor A. C. Rule. He will make every effort to have the aldermen stay within the limits of his "economy code."

"It is very probable that the tax-rate will have to be raised from 2 to 3 1/2 per cent next year in order to meet the city's obligations to the banks on the illegal bank stock taxes," he said. "The city is also involved in another suit with the former owners of the water department and if we should lose that it would mean another debt to pay. Even in the face of these objections our expenditures have not been lessened materially."

"I will oppose any improvement that even hint of luxury. We must begin to practice economy and we will start right now."

He intimated he was opposed to the ornamental street lighting system for S. Cherry-st and also to the plans for the improvement of the boulevards on S. Cherry and N. State-sts and W. College-ave.

"We will complete our paving program for this year and then there will be no more paying under my administration unless the city has sufficient funds to pay for it," he added. "I will favor no expenditures unless they are for absolute necessities."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE GARRETT FOLSON is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J. It is believed that the death weapon was a pichag, an Oriental knife, and that it was purchased on a boardwalk.

Folson's bathing companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN BARNABY and CARMELITA VALDON.

ANASTASIA FOLSON, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command, and it is established that one CROYDON SEARS is a fancier of curious weapons. Sears admits buying two knives but not the pichag.

Anastasia engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, Folson's nephew, arrives and is puzzled by the curious French dolls in his uncle's room.

Croydon Sears stands for FLEMING STONE, famous detective. He tells him Folson had been blackmailing him and he had lied at the inquest but was innocent. Stone meets others in the elevator, including NED BARRON and his wife, MADELINE, who puzzles him.

ROBIN SEARS, son of Croydon, is surprised when Stone mentions the dolls; Folson had owned, and Stone later discovers one doll in the image of Madeleine. Barron and learns that it was Folson's favorite doll. He finds out that Folson had returned to his hotel one certain night in a wheel chair and offers to pay money if the chair pusher is produced.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLV The man told Stone. "I know him," the man told Stone. "It was Bill Brammer." "Can you take me to him — now?" "Guess so — if you'll fix it with the boss." Stone fixed it and they went forth. His guide soon located Bill, who chanced to be idle, and said he means-averse to telling anything he knew — for a consideration. And he knew a lot. "Yes, sir," he said. "I remember the matter well. You see, a lady was my passenger, a real swell one—" "Alone?" "Yes, sir, all alone. Said she just wanted a breath of air and a little rest from folks, or sumpin like that. They often do that. Well, I rolled her along, and then a gentleman stopped me and he got in with the lady, and told me to roll on. As the lady made no objection, it was none of my business, so I pushed 'em down to the end of the route, and then turned back again. We'd nearly reached the Majusca when the gentleman calls out for me to stop, and then the lady got out and got into another chair, and he stayed in and I rolled him on to the hotel, and he got out there — at the Majusca."

"You know who he was?" "I didn't then, Mister, but next day I found it was the very chap what was murdered in the ocean!" "Why did you never tell this to anyone?" "Nobody asked me anything about it, and I'd no reason to say anything. I couldn't see as it had any bearing on the murder, and I'd no wish to drag in the lady."

"Do you know who she was?" "I didn't that night, but I've found out since."

"Well, who was she?" "Her name is Mrs. Barron, sir."

"Brammer," Stone said, "you did right to keep this matter quiet. Now continue to do so. I am authority, and you'll get in no trouble if you say nothing. But peep one word of it, and you'll be in such trouble as you've never dreamed of. See?"

Brammer saw, and egged on by a monetary influence, willingly agreed to keep his own counsel.

"What a revelation," thought Stone as he walked away. "Madeline Barron secretly riding in a chair with Folson that night, and sneaking into the hotel by herself. Looks pretty positive, but nothing's positive till it's proved."

Had the astute sleuth but known it, his suspicions were at that very moment being proved up to the hilt. The Barrons, in their own suite, were dressing for luncheon, when Madeline's composure gave way. "Ned," she cried, in a sort of broken wail, "I can't stand it! I can't!"

"Of course, you can't darling. I've only been waiting for this breaking to come. I know it must come, but I didn't want to force it. My darling girl, don't you suppose I've seen every bit of your struggle, followed every step of your way, for the last few days? I know you so well, sweet-heart, every tone of your voice, every look in your dear eyes — and now, are you ready to tell me all about it?"

But Madeline her whole form shaking with sobs, was unable to speak. Barron took her in his arms and drew her down to the couch, while he patted and soothed her.

"Pretty bad, is it dear? Well, wait till you're ready to talk."

The great, enveloping love that was here, instead of helping Madeline, seemed rather to make her distress greater, but the wise and good man beside her only held her gently to him, and now and then whispered an encouraging word.

"Dear little Maddy," he said, "say what you want to, when you feel like it. Only remember, dearest, no matter what it is, no matter what you have to tell me, nothing can shake my love for you the least bit. And, remember, too, that I am here for you to lean on. Here to protect you from any danger or any trouble. Got that? Well, then, aren't you nearly ready to begin?"

"It's about—about—"

"Yes, Madeline, about Garrett Folson."

"How did you know?" "I didn't know. But when you go while if his name is mentioned and are nervous and restless ever since that tragedy, I can't help knowing there's some connection."

"There is," Madeline suddenly sat up straight and looked at him. "There and I'm going to tell you all about it. Ned, and I'm going to tell you all about it and then you can do with me as you see fit."

"Before you begin, dear, let me assure you that you needn't tell me. If as you know, for a chair, ride by myself. I sometimes did that, you know."

"Yes, I liked to see you do it once in a while. It always seemed to give you a new outlook or something."

"Yes, I did it when I needed to bring myself up with a round turn. Well, that night I went out, never dreaming he would follow, and he did, and he got into my chair."

"Go on, dearest," and Barron kissed her tenderly.

"And he said unless I left you and went away with him he would publish to the world the story of my going away with him. And he said nobody would believe that Father came and took me away before we were alone a moment."

"And still you didn't kill him, Maddy?"

If You Need a Tonic, Get the Best

Gays, Mills, Wis.—"I was very much rundown following motherhood and was so nervous I feared I might lose my mind. I went to LaCrosse (after having doctored without relief) and took medicine three months, but did not gain much that I could see. I had taken Dr. Pierce's medicine a few years before but I did not think about them for a while. Finally my husband bought me three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I soon became less dizzy and not so nervous, while the medicine I took of others seemed to make me more nervous. I am well now and am glad to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine to all sufferers."—Mrs. Dyer McCumber, Box 204. (Picture above.)

THE kind of garden you want will tell you the kind of seeds you should buy. If you want a garden that returns you an abundance of beautiful flowers or fine vegetables, you will buy the best seeds available, regardless of their price.

Keep your mind on your garden! Buy Ferry's purebred Seeds because they produce the finest flowers and vegetables. They come from wonderful parent plants. They are tested seeds. More extensive tests are carried on in our great experimental gardens than anywhere else in the United States to determine that Ferry's Seeds are true to type.

Naturally, Ferry's purebred Seeds cost more than ordinary seeds. But why "take a chance" for a handful of nickels? The purebred quality of Ferry's Seeds will more than make up the difference. Seventeen bushels of tomatoes came from one ten-cent packet of Ferry's Seeds.

OUR FAMILY SQUABBLE

There are indications that the governor and the legislature are not dwelling under one roof in domestic felicity. For the sake of their children, vox populi, they ought to get along better together. There were unhappy evidences of discord from the beginning, and the breach has widened. It seems to be a case of incompatibility on the part of the legislature, and cruel and inhuman treatment is laid at the door of the governor. The governor says in a message to the legislature, "You have had your investigation, your strike and your vacation, and I hope you are now ready to give your attention to the needed legislation." This has made the law-makers hot under the collar. They say it is insulting to their dignity, but without explaining what their dignity consists of. They are ready to divorce the governor from bed and board. All in all, it is a distressing state of affairs. We trust there will be no assault and battery.

If one must take sides in this unfortunate melee, we must elect to stand with the governor. We think the law-makers take themselves too seriously. When they met they wanted rope and the governor has given it to them. They have run it out to the end, and it has brought them up with a jerk. They have been doing exactly what the governor intimates, fiddling around to little or no purpose, investigating with inconclusive results, squabbling over trivial political and organization differences, striking and vacationing. Up to date the record is practically a blank so far as worthwhile legislation goes. The legislature might see itself in a glass if it would consider the refusal of the people to increase its wage scale, but evidently it is not disposed to take a look.

Mr. Zimmerman is not expected to sit in a swivel chair with his feet on his desk for four months and not have any important bills to sign, with little prospect of any in the months to come. Naturally, he grows restive. If anything, he has been too lenient in letting the legislature play horse. He is well within his prerogatives if he gives advice and urges legislation which he believes the state needs. In fact, that is his duty. But the legislature does not seem to wish advice. It would rather act up and make a scene. This may be its privilege, but it is hardly fair for it to resent executive remonstrance and denounce the governor in the bargain. There are a good many legislators who have missed their calling. They should be more contrite and humble in the honors they so little deserve.

It may be Blaine yeast that is working in the legislature. We do not know. Certainly it is in need of a spring tonic. Governor Zimmerman realizes this, for he has prescribed a good dose. The law-makers are making a wry face and sputtering a good deal, but if he keeps the spoon to their mouths he may get the medicine down. Once down, it may turn them to work, and that is the best prescription of all for touchiness and a bad liver.

RELIEF IN SIGHT FOR FARMER

Senator Fess of Ohio has just called on the president following Mr. McNary's visit. He also informs the public that plans are under way for the drafting of a compromise farm bill, to take the place of the McNary-Haugen measure, for passage by congress next winter. In his opinion the bill will not include the equalization fee of the McNary-Haugen plan, but will provide a large fund from which long time loans on liberal terms can be made to cooperative associations. It also develops that a movement is under way to transfer the leadership in the compromise program to Senator McNary.

It is stated that Senator Capper of Kansas, leader of the farm bloc, approves of this program and will give it his support. Secretary Jardine of the department of agriculture, and others of the administration's leaders, will soon begin the preparation of a bill which it is hoped will have the approval of the farmer as well as of the president. In Washington, there seems to be a feeling of confidence that a solution will be worked out.

These developments must have a dampening effect on the candidacy of Mr. Lowden for the Republican nomination. If the program goes through it will of course kill his candidacy, unless Mr. Coolidge decides not to run. In the meantime, the lines are being laid for a great political drama, and possibly a battle. Whatever the outcome, the farmer seems to be in a position to profit by it.

ANOTHER AVIATION RECORD

It has remained for Americans again to achieve a new world record in aviation. Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlain stayed in the air in a Wright-motored monoplane 51 hours and 12 minutes against a previous world record of 45 hours and 12 minutes held by two Frenchmen.

Americans have many records in aerial feats and in navigation to their credit. The first circumnavigation of the world was by Americans, and it was an American, who first successfully flew to the North pole. The exploit of Acosta and Chamberlain is of great scientific importance, because it demonstrates the practicability of long sustained flights. It comes at a time when Rodman Wanamaker is sponsoring a flight from New York to Paris by Commander Byrd, the man who made the North pole. The first considerable flight over water was in 1909 when a Frenchman negotiated the English channel. In 1918 members of the British Royal Air force flew from London to Calcutta, a distance of 6500 miles, but of course it was not a non-stop flight. In 1919 Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown made the Atlantic passage from Newfoundland to Clifden, Ireland, a distance of 1936 miles, in sixteen and one-half hours, but it was a reckless undertaking and was only consummated by divine intervention, after difficulties that seemed certain to end in disaster. During the last year there have been flights between Africa and South America. The project to fly from New York to Paris is, however, the longest non-stop flight yet planned. Undoubtedly it will be accomplished, if not this year, in a very short time; but the probability is it will go through on schedule.

With all the achievements to the credit of American aviators, and to their ability apparently to lead the world in new adventures and demonstrations of the flexibility of an aeroplane, the United States is still far behind Europe in the practical use of aviation. In fact, we have scarcely made a beginning, while all over Europe there are regular aeroplane routes which have been operated for years. Flying is a common means of travel and transport throughout western Europe and as far east as Vienna. In the application of aviation to military defense, Europe is also well ahead of the United States. About the only thing we have done with the aeroplane of a really utilitarian nature is in the transport of mails. The possibilities of aviation for military, civil and commercial uses are so great and so certain of realization, it is to be hoped the United States will soon be induced to undertake their maximum development.

QUOTS VS. QUARTS

Every one and the outdoors are substitutes for wild parties, a psychiatrist advises. One of these evenings when you attend a party you won't know whether you are asking for quots or quarts. No party will be complete without a couple of quots on the hip. . . . When somebody suggests a rocking chair, propose instead a chinning contest. . . . The horizontal bar soon will supplant the punchbowl in some of our best families. . . . But if the outdoors is a good anodyne for sleeping, then there's park benches or a tree to react.

HOW TO GET ALONG WITH MIGRAINE

Pericardial Punctures never were a pain of red suspenders and yet he was the best bass drummer they ever had in the Upper Jay German Silver band, and just so even if you or I begin life with a handicap of neurotic heredity or taint which predisposes us to migraine (migrain, hemierania, periodic sick headache), we may ameliorate or improve our condition by individual effort and something more than the ordinary care about right living.

For instance, one common though erratic notion about migraine is that the attack is brought on by "biliousness." Indeed, a popular name for the attack is "bilious headache," a fancy which probably grows out of the fact that in most cases the vomiting attending the attack brings up some bile stained fluid after the stomach has been emptied by repeated retching. This appearance of bile, however, is a perfectly normal sequence of prolonged retching or repeated vomiting from any cause whatever, and it rather indicates that the liver and bile apparatus are functioning normally. But the students of migraine, while recognizing that the vomiting is an effect of a feature of the headache rather than a cause, do not gainsay the fact that most cases of so called "biliousness" spell overeating and a single rebellion of nature. It is both wisdom and discretion, therefore, for the victim of migraine to avoid overindulgence in food or condiment, since the frequency and severity of the seizures in migraine vary inversely with the physical condition or fitness of the individual. A migraine subject is most likely to have one of the attacks when overfed or overstrained by the trials and vexations of life.

One-third of all cases of migraine begin in childhood, nine-tenths of all cases are established by the age of 25 years. Only rarely does the trouble develop after thirty. Females are slightly more often affected than males, but there is no chance for an argument here, save that the males have a way of shifting burdens to the weaker sex. A striking fact is that the onset of migraine often dates from a period of illness or lowered health—and I believe in most instances such illness or lowered health is as much the individual's own fault as it is the fault of heredity, environment or the ignorance or callousness of the community in regard to sanitation.

Uncorrected eyestrain or eyestrain inaccurately fitted with glasses may incite attacks in a person who is subject to migraine but eyestrain is positively not a cause of this neurosis. The migrainous sufferer should be very particular to have his eyestrain properly corrected. Accurate measurements may be made only when the accommodation is placed at rest by "drops" in a person under middle age—but the best the sufferer can expect from correction of eyestrain is lengthening of the intervals between seizures; it is seldom that migraine is so slight a taint that it may be wiped out altogether by the relief of eyestrain. The sensible view of this factor is that the migrainous subject should be a little more particular about the correction of eyestrain than ordinary folks need be. Just as he must be a little more careful about avoiding excesses in eating than ordinary folk have to be.

The same policy holds true as regards the avoidance of constipation. No excuse for anybody to get the constipation or physical distress there is some actual organic disease or defect of the alimentary system. The migrain patient must be especially careful to avoid this depraved habit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dropsy Gone

I am 58 years old. I have had dropsy for a number of years. The water has gone away. Is there any certain kind of food that will bring on the dropsy again? (Mrs. B. C. J.)

Answer—No. The only general suggestion I can give you is that it is well to avoid very salty foods or the use of much salt, and if you are at all stout you should take sugar and sweetened articles only sparingly.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, April 19, 1902

The Phoenix and Philanthropic Literary societies of Lawrence, Kan., were to give a musical and literary entertainment at the Methodist church this evening. The subject for discussion was to be "Resolved, that the United States has not reached a point in its industrial development when it should definitely abandon its tariff policy as a protective measure." The affirmative teams was to be composed of Andrew P. of Lawrence, Herbert Peck, representing the Phoenix society. The negative team consisted of John Ziegle and R. Percy Hutton, representing the Philanthropes.

Dr. L. H. Moore left that day for Kansas City where he was to visit his parents.

Miss Esther Ullman of Ryan high school won first place in the League of Nations declamatory contest at the First Methodist church this evening at Oshkosh. Miss Belle Harris of the Ryan high school was awarded second place. Other Appleton people who appeared on the program were George Wettengel and Alta Helm. The locale was composed of high schools of Appleton, Fond du Lac and Oshkosh.

Miss Clara Schultz had returned from Oshkosh where she visited for several days.

Mrs. A. Graef returned from a visit with friends at Hortonville.

TEN YEARS AGO

Saturday, April 11, 1917

Taking advantage of the threatened food shortage throughout the world and the demands on the American farmers to feed not only the United States but her allies, the drys in congress were preparing to launch a spectacular drive for "war prohibition." The purpose was to stop the manufacture of all liquor and beer in the United States at least for the period of the war, thereby diverting millions of bushels of grain into food channels. It was said that more than 600,000,000 bushels of grain would be saved by closing the beer and whisky plants.

With Brazil on the verge of war with Germany after diplomatic rupture, Bolivia diplomatically severed from Berlin; Argentina was swept by an anti-German sentiment that day which seemed likely to result in a diplomatic break between Buenos Aires and Berlin.

Lake Winnepigosis had been regarded by experts as being an ideal body of water on which to locate a school for aviators. The government had decided to have built about 5,000 hydroplanes for use along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Because Lake Winnepigosis was ideally situated for a training school, being inland and therefore well protected and because it had such a large body of protected water it was recognized by experts as an ideal location for such an institution. A letter outlining the plan was mailed that afternoon to Congressman David G. C. Clason, district representative in the national legislature, asking him to bring the matter to the attention of the proper authorities.

Karl Morry, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Morry, had returned from Chicago where he passed an examination for enlistment in the federal aviation corps. He was to enter the second division.

Judging from the sounds in England, Mr. Churchill is having his troubles in trying to lair the budget.

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

ON—

LOANS FOR VETERANS

Washington, D. C. — Many veterans of the World War anxiously awaited January 1, 1927, which was the first date on which they might borrow money, using their adjusted compensation certificates as security. Under the act these loans were to be made through banks qualified to make such loans. To the consternation and chagrin of many veterans it was found that a number of such banks were not only not anxious to make loans on the certificates, but absolutely refused to do so. The reason generally given was that the loans were small and the amount of work entailed was too great to warrant them.

The question then came up as to the Government's making these loans. An item providing funds for this purpose was included in the urgency deficiency appropriation bill which failed to pass. The Veterans' Bureau was then in the position of having been authorized to make loans to veterans but no money was provided. When Congress closed without having passed the necessary legislation, the Bureau began to figure how the loan authorization bill previously enacted might be put into effect.

General Frank T. Hines, the Director of the Veterans' Bureau, announced the other day that Plans were to be put into operation for developing a sufficient fund from which to make the loans by using funds which accrue for investment in the converted insurance fund at the rate of $3,000,000 a month. Formerly these funds have been invested in Farm Loan bonds.

The Bureau will go into the business of making these loans on April 1, steps having been taken to have all the regional offices in the United States and the sub-offices in the Philippines and Hawaii equipped for the work. The loans will be made by the disbursing clerk at the Veterans' Bureau and by the special disbursing agents at the regional offices and various United Veterans' hospitals. The first two named may make loans to any veteran, but those in the hospitals.

SAME AS BANK LOANS

Loans were made to veterans by the Bureau under the same general conditions as those under which banks lend money on the adjusted compensation certificates. The rate of interest is the same — not more than two per cent per annum above the rate charged at the date the loan is made for the discount of 90-day commercial paper by the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which the part are apt to be more or less delayed.

All notes must be accompanied by the adjusted compensation certificate. Upon receipt of these the disbursing officer must determine whether the note has been properly prepared and executed, whether the identification is in accordance with Bureau regulations, and whether the amount of the note is within the loan value of the certificate at the date of the loan.

It will be the policy of the Bureau to mail all checks issued on accounts except in very unusual cases where the veteran is in urgent need of immediate relief. In such an event the check may be delivered to him in person. The central of the Veterans' Bureau will make estimates, based upon the daily reports received of the loans made or other information, of the amount of money required by each disbursing officer, and the funds will be advanced accordingly.

General Hines, in his statement, emphasizes the fact that the loans to be made through the Bureau are intended to supplement those made by the banks throughout the country, which up to date have amounted to some $27,000,000. He requests that in order to facilitate the aiding of those veterans actually in need of this service men who are able to borrow through their local banks refrain from making application for loans from the Veterans' Bureau. It is explained that in other words the authority to make loans has been given to the Veterans' Bureau to cover an emergency in veterans' relief. The Bureau therefore asks those veterans who are able to negotiate loans through their banks to cooperate with it by doing so, so that all holders of certificates may be given an equal opportunity to borrow money which they need.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Those tens of thousands who, dropping in for a visit to Manhattan, take in the boat ride to the Statue of Liberty, must be struck by the modern jazz flavor that attaches to almost every detail of the experience.

Every stage of the ceremonial is a cross between Coney Island and the traveling carnival.

At the battery a big sign announces the price of the trip and such details. If one does not care to make the ride the concessionaire will rent spy glasses for two cents. Once aboard a little fellow of Italian cast begins thrumming the latest jazz hit from Broadway on a guitar and follows this by a passing of the tin cup.

Arriving at Bedlow's Island a hot dog stand proves the first introduction to our giant symbol of freedom and as if by way of ironic commentary on this morose Liberty, a sign appears reading "Kick off the grass." The guide is soon pointing upon his hapless adventurers with books and souvenirs for sale.

The whole arrangement carries the suggestion of catch-penny or circus manipulation, so by the time one is climbing the spiral stairway to Liberty's head there comes a feeling that perhaps she will be hanging it just a little, or perhaps blushing.

Add Scotch stories:
A Broadway realtor leased the other-day the basement of a big theatre for $5000. The place is to be occupied by a canteen. All of which is common-place. But . . . In the lease is a clause allowing the realtor to eat there at any time without charge.

The public eye inevitably wanders in the direction of celebrities of the screen, but a whole banquet room full of notables from other fields can gather without getting a tumble.

The other night at a dinner of national cartoonists I spotted, in one corner variously Irving Cobb, Judge Landis, Nick Longworth and Senator Borah, down from Washington; E. W. Schnitzer, the divine fiddler; Ruben Goldberg; and Bud Fisher. Not one could have shot up the street at banquet hour without hitting anyone but the hotel-dorman. And on a movie first night, with screen favorites arriving, ten mounted cops are required to keep off the crowds.

There is nothing that makes one feel the hugeness of the city more than the relative inconspicuousness of great throngs of notables. In a single dining-room I have often counted a hundred or more persons, anyone of whom would be considered front page news if they arrived in a city of average size but who, even when massed, are as completely lost in the shuffle as your humble correspondent.

Nick Longworth, by the way, told a story that since has been heard much about town. It concerned two senators. The first was related to the sad effects of Washington bootlegging to the other.

"Do you know, we were walking down the street the other day," commented Senator No. 1, "when my friend began to act queerly. I asked him what the matter was. And he said a tiger had been following him for blocks."

"Well, we went along a ways and I saw him suddenly sigh with relief. I again questioned him."

"Oh, I felt so much better now," he said. "The tiger has gone!"

Now tell you that poor fellow is crazy. I located around and the tiger was still there."

WHEN ELK ROAMED EASTERN FORESTS

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.
This set of elk antlers at least a century old. They may be ten centuries old or they may have adorned the head of a forest monarch even 2000 years ago.

Nor have they hung on the walls of a sportsman's den all the intervening years. Instead they have been buried away deep in the mud of a swamp, hidden from the men that cleared the neighboring forests and plowed the fields.

We commonly think of the elk as an animal of the western mountains. Few of us know that these splendid beasts once ranged in great herds over much of what is now the northeastern part of this country, that they were abundant in the Allegheny mountains and on the plains of the middle west.

Occasionally a set of antlers like known the last elk disappeared at least 100 years ago. How long they have been buried there, is no way to guess.

AUTOS BANNED--NOW STUDENTS TRAVEL ON SKATES!

Mildred Seeba, returning from two years study in Italy, will appear in this country in a few months' time. Miss Seeba was the first winner of the Caruso Memorial Foundation prize, and made her operatic debut at Perugia, Italy, in "Cavaleria Rusticana."

Automobiles for students were banned at the University of Illinois, at Champaign-Urbana. As a result a wave of roller-skating has swept the campus. Even the University band is rolling something besides bass, as one of the pictures above shows. The co-eds are shown starting the first feminine roller derby ever perpetrated on an American university campus. The safety first idea is being employed to advantage, as the frosh with the appended bedding demonstrates, while at the lower right, a student is getting ready to take a pretty co-ed out for a ride on her skates.

High spots of the annual reunion of the United Conference Veterans at Tampa: Aaron L. Hurt, 82, of Honaker, Va., and Mrs. Fannie Graves, 66, of Chattanooga, met at last year's Birmingham foregathering and added an unprogrammed feature to 1927's by stepping off into matrimony. Here they are just after the ceremony. In the middle is a car full of pretty United Daughters of the Confederacy in the reunion parade, with a grizzled vet as guidon bearer and (inset below) General Felix Robertson, of Texas, only surviving general who wore the gray from '61 to '65.

Bobbed hair is short, but long hair is much shorter. It sounds paradoxical, but here is Jeanne Joyson of Los Angeles to prove it. Her hair is long but by winding it around, as illustrated in the two views above, Jeanne has less hair encumbering her neck and ears than if her hair were bobbed.

If you started to trump your partner's ace with the deuce of trumps in this game, the deuce would be likely to speak up with "That's a deuce of a trick!" For the cards were aces of Southern California society, and the game was on the beach of the fashionable Gables club at Santa Monica. ## SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Charles Reilly Neff's pale face assumed its usual floridity for a moment as he answered: "I believe I can quote quite accurately. Miss Lane, or rather, Mrs. Wiley as she is now, flung her arms about Mr. Cluny's neck and exclaimed, 'Oh, you darling! You're the sweetest, most generous man in the world!'"

Banning smiled as laughter rippled over the courtroom, laughter which was quickly silenced by Judge Grimshaw's gavel.

"To your knowledge, this then is the last will and testament of Ralph Winston Cluny?" Banning asked.

"It is. The will providing for his wife, and to be signed after his marriage was, of course, never signed," Neff answered with thickened lips.

"Your witness," Banning waved toward Churchill.

Churchill accepted with alacrity, stepping close to the chair in which his rival of old was awaiting cross-examination.

"Did Mr. Cluny, so far as you know, have any cause to fear an untimely death?"

"He expressed no such fear to me," Neff answered curtly. "He made this will merely as a protection to Miss Lane. His advanced age was his only source of fear. I am sure of that."

"To your knowledge, as Mr. Cluny's partner and a sharer of his business and professional secrets, did Mr. Cluny have an enemy who might have wished his death?"

"Not to my knowledge," Neff answered with a snap of the jaws.

"Now, Mr. Neff, you saw Miss Lane and Mr. Cluny together frequently both before and after their engagement, did you not?" Churchill asked smilingly.

"I did."

"Will you tell this jury, Mr. Neff, as frankly as you have just answered Mr. Banning's question in regard to Miss Cherry's reception of Mr. Cluny's news of the will, whether Miss Cherry was usually demonstrative in her affection for Mr. Cluny?"

"Not in my presence," Neff answered so primly that another titter rose from the audience.

"Would you say on oath that this was the only occasion on which you saw Miss Cherry show affection or love to her fiancé, Mr. Cluny?"

"No," Neff hesitated.

"That is all, Mr. Neff," Churchill smiled, and waved the lawyer away.

"Call Mrs. Nora Dennis," Banning directed.

"Mrs. Nora Dennis! Mrs. Nora Dennis!" chanted the court clerk, and Faith's heart plunged sickeningly as she realized that "Madame Denise," the modiste who had made Cherry's trousseau and for whom she Faith had been working surreptitiously since Cherry's arrest, was going to testify against the girl who had paid her five hundred dollars for making her wedding clothes.

"Your name is Mrs. Nora Dennis," Banning began.

"Yes, sir."

"You are known, professionally, as Madame Denise?"

"Yes, I am a modiste, and a French name and accent are business assets," Nora Dennis replied nervously, flushing as she saw smiles spreading over the faces of the audience.

"Now, Mrs. Dennis, do you recall where you were on or about Monday, October twenty-first last? During the working day, I mean?"

"I was working in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Lane, 3518 Myrtle street, making a trousseau for Miss Cherry," Nora Dennis replied.

As Faith wracked her brains to discover the significance of the date that Banning had mentioned, her eyes never left the modiste's face, and at last, as she saw smiles spreading over the faces of the audience, she knew.

VISUALIZE IDEAL YOU WOULD BE

Mme. Helena Rubinstein

TODAY, in further regard to the subject I have chosen for this pre-Easter week's series, of beauty talks, I want to impress upon you the importance of having a mental picture of what you want to look like. Visualize the expression with which you would like to face the world.

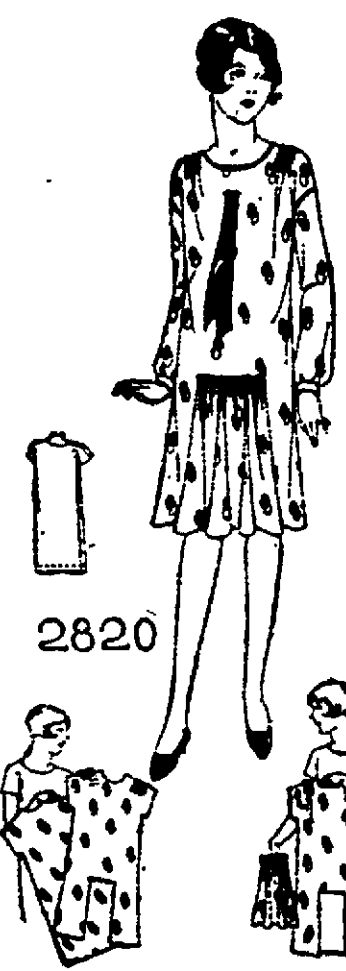

Yesterday I told you how to divide your thoughts, in order to create the right kind of a thought habit, and today I am going to endeavor to show how you can effect definite changes in your facial expressions if you really want to, if you will really make a sincere effort.

It is a scientifically known fact that the old cells in our bodies are gradually dying off and new cells are forming—growing. Scientists tell us also that our whole physical bodies change every seven years and that the new cells do not have to grow in exact likeness to the old ones. We are in a position to control the formation of the new cells so that they will grow as we want them to, if we direct the proper amount of attention to them.

We are enabled to do this, due to the fact that every cell in our bodies possesses its own intelligence, and this intelligence will take instructions from the center of intelligence—the brain—if the instructions are properly directed.

But like good or silver or any other concrete material with which one works, there must be a pattern to be followed, a form, a mold. And to make the proper sort of mold we must visualize hard enough and strong enough and consistently enough the image we want and you

TRY OUTLOOK IF INLOOK IS BAD!

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I OFTEN wonder whether brains, ability, or a love of humanity play the greatest part in a man's rise to fame. One is struck constantly, in observing a man or woman who has risen to national prominence, by the enormous interest he takes in people. Instantly you find he is interested in you, what you are doing, why you are doing it, your chance for success—all about you.

The big man talks about himself, the little man talks about himself. The little man makes you his audience, the big man makes an audience for you. It is very difficult to find out things about important people. Yet their reluctance to talk about themselves is not a pose.

Read the diary or impressions of a great man. He will tell you where he went or what he did, but usually through the medium of people he has met. Other people, outside contacts, descriptions of men who interest him, what they are doing, what they have done, what they expect to do.

Here is a little unpublished story of President Wilson:

When he was ill he used to drive across the Potomac, through Arlington and Alexandria, Va., to Mount Vernon. He got to know the children on the way.

In Alexandria a young girl used to wave to him as she played tennis. He always waved back.

One day he waved as he passed, but on the return trip he looked tired and ill and did not look up. The little girl was worried. She wrote him a letter and said she was sorry.

There came a beautiful letter in reply, not dictated, but written by himself. She has it framed.

Not a political gesture—the kindly act of a sick man who had grown accustomed to think of others and to appreciate their thought of him.

Our own troubles, our own responsibilities, our ailments—everything ours! Why? There is an old saying: "When the outlook is bad try the inlook." I should like to add, "When the inlook is bad try the outlook."

Love Letters Of The Great

AS COMPILED BY DIANA RICE

DUKE OF SUSSEX—SON OF GEORGE III—1773-1843.

The Duke of Sussex was not the first member of a royal family to defy conventions and marry the woman he loved. This son of George III became enamored of the charms of Lady Augusta, a daughter of the Earl of Dunmore, while he was touring Europe. And in violation of the Royal Marriage Act, he married her in Rome. The marriage was never recognized by his family, and the young pair were eventually separated. Lady Augusta passed the rest of her life in seclusion, and the Duke of Sussex never remarried. He was a man of great intellectual power and a serious student throughout his life. The couple had two children.

conducted in everything by you; but I must be married, or die. I would rather see none of my family than be deprived of you.

You alone can make me: you alone shall this evening. I will sooner drop than give you up.

Good God! how I feel! and my love to be doubted sincere and warm. The Lord knows the truth of it, and as I say, if I am not married in forty-eight hours I am no more. Oh! Augusta, my soul, let us try; let me come; I am capable of everything; I fear nothing, and Mr. Gunn seeing our resolution, will agree. I am half-dead. Good God! What will become of me? I shall go mad, most undoubtedly.

My treasure, my dearest life and love, how can I refuse you? and yet dare I trust to the happiness your letter promised me? You shall come if you wish it; you shall do as you like; my whole soul rejoices in the assurance of your love, and to your exertions I will trust. I will send to— but I fear the badness or the night will prevent his coming. My mother has ordered her carriage at past seven and will not, I fear, be out before the half-hour after. To be yours tonight seems a dream that I cannot make out; the whole day have I been plunged in misery, and now to wake to joy is a felicity that is beyond ideas of bliss. I doubt its success; but do as you will; I am what you will; you will be mine and no will can ever be dearer to me, more mine, than that of my Augustus, my lover, my all.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinies helped tired Peter pick and on the job they planned to stick until the peppers all were picked and nicely stored away. They worked out in the blazing sun and tried to make believe "twice fun, but soon they found that working hard was not so much like play.

"They filled the baskets to the top," toward evening Peter shouted, "Stop! We've surely picked enough. I think, for market in the morn." He looked around and then he said, "These must be carried to the shed." The thought of lifting baskets made the Tinies look forlorn.

he snuggled down to sleep, wee Clowmy said, "It's great!"

When morning came they all arose and Scouty said, "There Peter goes. He's heading for his garden. Shall we run and help some more?" And Clowmy waived, "Oh, my! Oh, gee! You go ahead, but not for me. I worked so much the first time that I'm really very sore."

Just then down where the roadway runs, they heard a voice shout, "Hot Cross buns." "Hurrah," said Copy, "there's some food. We have no time to kill. Let's all run down and buy a bun. 'Twill taste good and be much fun." The Tinies did, and ate until they all had their fill.

PLAY ROOM MUST BE LARGE AND SUNSHINY

BY A. LOUISE FILLEBROWN

THE playroom should be full of color and sunshine, a cherry, inviting place for the young members of your family to spend their time. It should be large enough if possible to allow room for their tea table so that some of their meals may be served away from the rest of the family. It should hold books and toys, well lighted desks for study, and comfortable cushioned window seats for story book hours.

The big windows should be simply curtained so that light and air may enter freely, so it is wise to put the color and decoration that every room needs on the walls. Lovely wallpapers do much to bring this color and interest into the nursery. Their designs are so numerous that it is possible to create almost any effect, and to insure durability it is a good idea to varnish them after they are hung. This makes them waterproof so that finger marks and spots may be washed off them with a damp cloth and soap if necessary.

Early surroundings influence the temperaments of small children tremendously, so it is most important that they be thought out carefully and made as attractive as possible.

WHAT joy there is on Easter Day! for That which it commemorates and signifies.

And with the sweet breath of a new Spring-time season, what gladness the Day's coming brings. We all have good cause, indeed, to be happy and to wish all others a happy, happy Easter: for joy reigns supreme because 'tis Easter and the World is Renewed. Naught but cheer is in the very air, and belongs in the hearts of each and every one of us.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is: AGAINST NO-TRUMP, WITHOUT A SURE ENTRY, LEAD THE QUEEN FROM FOUR, FIVE OR SIX CARDS HEADED BY ACE-QUEEN-JACK.

Yesterday's hand was:

♠ A-Q-J-3
♥ 8-7-6
♦ A-Q-J-4

In every case South's initial bid obtains the contract.

My answer slip reads:

No. 17, West should lead the Queen of Clubs.

No. 18, West should lead the Ace of Clubs.

No. 19, West should lead the Queen of Spades.

No. 20, West should lead the Three of Hearts.

No. 17: Against a No-Trump, while the choice between a Queen-Jack-3 suit and an Ace-Queen-Jack suit would be close, it is not when one suit is of five cards and the other of four.

No. 18: Contract, three Spades. Having trump strength, a singleton is not a sound lead; and it is best to try the long suit even when it is headed by a tenace.

No. 19: Contract, three Hearts. Having but 1 trump and the establishment of a suit not being sure to be advantageous, the Queen-Jack-3 presents a better opening than the Ace-Queen-Jack. The worthless trebleton is not to be considered.

No. 20: Contract four Diamonds. It is a close choice between the singleton Three of Hearts and the Queen of Spades; but in desperate cases the singleton is more apt to result successfully than the lead of the moderately strong four-card suit.

This concludes our first series of leading hands. Twenty different leads have been explained and you have had twenty opportunities to compare your leads with your friends' solutions and with my answers. Next week a series of twenty bidding hands will be submitted; the first appearing on Monday and the last on Friday. Arrange now with your Bridge-playing friends to name your bids every one of the five days, each one on his own answer slip, and see how your respective records compare. No Bridge contest in which you can participate will be more interesting than this.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSMAYOR OBJECTS TO PAVING APPROACH TO LAWE-ST BRIDGE

State Will Pay for Improvement if City Waits a Year,
He Said

Kaukauna—Mayor W. C. Sullivan has refused to consent to the board of public work's recommendation that the north and south approaches to the Lawe street bridge be repaved and the bridge be replaced. The board decided at its special meeting Monday evening that as long as the work of repaving the draw span was to be done now, it would not create any more inconvenience to pave the approaches. Members of the board were of the opinion that the present concrete is in need of repair and that the new concrete should be laid at once. The board adopted a resolution that with the consent of the mayor the Joseph McCarty Construction Co. of this city should be given the work of paving the approaches on a day basis.

The mayor gave as his reason for refusing to sanction the paving that the city lacked funds to pay for the work. He said the state would allow only $3,000 for any work done on the bridge in any one calendar year and in his opinion, the planning and cementing would be much in excess of the $3,000 which would have to be paid by the city. Mayor Sullivan said he believed the plan should be done at once. This work will not quite amount to $3,000 and what ever is left over can be used for making necessary repairs on the bridge. "Then," the mayor said, "next year we can go ahead and pave the bridge and charge the amount, which should be less than $3,000, to the state. The work will not be a burden on the taxpayers of the city then."

LOTS OF MATERIAL FOR BASEBALL TEAM

Players Start Practice for Opening Game With Appleton Squad

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna baseball team will get out for practice again on Sunday to prepare for the opening game of the season with Appleton. The Appleton team has always been Kaukauna's traditional and ancient rival. Whenever the two cities meet in any branch of sport a good fight is assured. Kaukauna has been without a baseball team during the last few years but will go back into the sport in dead earnest this year.

Alex Gahn, manager of the Kaukauna squad, reported plenty of home talent with which to make a team. At present he has five men trying out for the pitching assignments and no less than three of them will be carried through the season. Most prominent of his pitchers is Kallista. In the catching department he has a likely candidate in Dix. In practice the squad has shown a great deal of hitting power.

The season will open in Kaukauna with the usual frills, President John Coppes said. An effort will be made to have Mayor W. C. Sullivan throw out the first ball and the Kaukauna Moose band will be at the grounds to pep things up with plenty of music.

They Lied To Win A Fortune

WINNIE SHELTON

T. Q. Curtis, millionaire department store owner, tried a strange experiment in philanthropy and conducted a contest among his employees to find the three girls whose ambitions seemed most worthy of furthering.

Those three—Billy Wells, Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton—went to his home to live for a year. His money was at their disposal to help them follow their chosen careers.

Of the three, only Billy Wells had told the truth about her ambition. The other two lied, not knowing what the prize was to be. When the girls learned that one of them was to inherit the millionaire's fortune, the home of T. Q. Curtis immediately became a place of jealousy and intrigue.

Curtis learned, too late, that money cannot buy everything. Before his experiment was over, he had nearly wrecked the lives of two girls and destroyed the happiness of the other.

This is the strange story that is unfolded in "Daughters of Midas," Anne Austin's latest serial. Be sure to read every chapter. It starts Tuesday, April 19, in The Post-Crescent.

"Daughters of Midas" is a thrilling story of the girl of today. Beautifully illustrated from photographs posed especially by members of the famous Theater Guild School, Inc., of New York.

LIBRARY STAFF WILL

All staff members at the Appleton public library will attend the annual convention of the Fox River Valley Library association at Waupun on April 20. The library will remain open that day as substitutes have been employed.

Those to go from Appleton will be Miss Florence Day, Miss Mary De Jonge, Mrs. Nellie Harriman, Mrs. Lily Embrey, and Miss Alvina Ahl.

Lightful, in the latter sequences Miss Borden is seen in some very stirring scenes of a kind that enthrall both men and women.

Irving Cummings directed "The Country Beyond," with sympathetic understanding and the cast is of unusual merit, including many well known screen celebrities. Ralph Graves plays opposite Miss Borden as her lover, while J. Farrell MacDonald of "The Lion House" fame, is cast as the whistling sergeant of the Mounted. Gertrude Astor fits admirably into the role of the menace. Evelyn Selbie, Fred Kohler, Lawford Davidson, Alfred Fisher and Lottie Williams have roles of importance.

WAUSAU RECORD HERALD:

"The Lawrence Glee Club has been giving annual concerts here for many years. Again this year the advancement is notable and their program is replete with renditions that would not have been attempted by college boys a few years ago."

EAU CLAIRE LEADER:

"Music lovers will long remember with pleasure this delightful event. The club was harmonious throughout responsive to direction and there came in succession a series of triumphs and acknowledgements is made to the competency of Dean Waterman as a real director."

STEVENS POINT JOURNAL:

"All chorus work showed unusual power and volume, while the clear enunciation combined with perfect rhythm combined to make the verse and music something long to be remembered. Delighted the audience under the remarkably fine leadership of Dean Waterman."

CHIPPewa HERALD TELEGRAM:

"Lawrence Glee Club offered a repertoire that has seldom been equalled in this city. Choruses beautiful and inspiring and voices harmoniously blended."

BELOIT DAILY NEWS:

"An amazing flow of well directed, well balanced tonal volume, concentrated in a program both unbacked and capably presented made the spring concert of the Lawrence Glee Club one to lay in the lavender of memory. ## STARS OF LAST WORLD SERIES SHINE IN FRIDAYS GAMES

Babe Ruth Starts Yanks
On Way To Third Triumph
Over Macks With Homerun

Willie Sherdel Holds Cubs to Two Hits But Loses on Hack's Homer

A big and a little star who proved their worth in the last world series are proving it again in the current campaign. One is big Babe Ruth, six feet two, and the other is little Bill Sherdel, five feet ten inches tall. Ruth had a lot to do with winning Friday's game, while Sherdel is down as the losing pitcher for his team, the Cardinals. Yet both were playing the old ball.

The big man usually is the more spectacular. Babe's bat started the slugging that beat the Athletics, 6 to 3, by taking the confidence from pitcher Ehmeke's arm with a howling homer in the opening frame. It was a blue-green, rainy season and the thunderous uproar that went with it didn't help the condition of the luckless pitcher at all.

Out in Chicago little Bill was playing baseball from the opposite end of the groove. Instead of receiving from a blue-green, rainy season and the thunderous uproar that went with it didn't help the condition of the luckless pitcher at all.

FORMER PLAYERS TO CHALLENGE BAETZ'
CLUB TO EARLY GAME

A challenge to the Appleton baseball team of the Fox River Valley League to play a game before May 1 has been issued by a group of local players who call themselves the First Ward Boosters. The nucleus of the team is composed of men who have played with the Valley loop team for the last two years either as regulars or subs and quite a revenge battle is anticipated if the challenge is accepted. The challenge was issued as before May 1, as after the league games they will have a decided advantage in playing experience over their foes.

The Boosters declare that failure of Manager Baetz' to accept the challenge for any reason whatsoever will show that he is attempting to run out of the game. Members of the Boosters include Cully Schultz, star infielder for the last two years; Dais Crowe, former Appleton and Kimberly hurler; Ted Van Wyck, Appleton outfielder; Brockhouse, catcher; and several other local "castoffs," according to the Booster manager.

One pair of bowlers rolled Friday evening in the first annual bowling tournament of the Wisconsin department of the American Legion at Elk alleys and that one pair forged high up among the leaders for their efforts.

The pair, H. Malout of Appleton and M. Malout of Menasha, hit 156 to take third place in the meet doubles, showing Waupaca and Green Bay dues down a notch and a Neenah pair from among the leaders. Merkle also had a good game previously in the singles and Malout had captured third in that department with a 637. It was the first two-city combination to take the drives.

Malout lead the pair with games of 181, 177 and 248, for a 503. Merkle had 162, 214, 154, 547.

Marquette Star Tells
Why Runner Lifts Arms

Milwaukee—"Why does a runner extend his arms to the heavens as he hits the tape at the finish?"

Not all runners do it, but most of them. It seems, have the habit of crossing the finish line with their head thrown back and their arms above them. A track coach would say it is done in the athlete's effort to keep the line and breast the tape, a matter. By extending his arms, of course, the chest is expanded just that fraction of an inch that may bring victory.

BOXING CZAR

REV. GEORGE V. MCCLURE

A "fighting parson" has been made a boxing czar at Seattle, Wash. Rev. George V. McClure knows boxing is illegal in Washington, but he is going to run the game in the open and defy the law. He is a former amateur boxer and believes that clean fighting, minus brutality, which will give the fans their money's worth, will be successful.

BADGERS EXPECT LARGE CROWD AT

10,000 Reserved Will Be Placed on Sale for Mail Order on May 1

The reservations will be in the east stands of the Stadium, so situated as to enable all to be within full view of the finish line of all races. BADGER BALLMEN
OPEN 1927 YEAR

Strong Bradley Tech Nine First Foe at Madison This Season

Madison—The Badger nine was to meet Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., in the first home baseball game of the 1927 schedule here Friday night and is determined to trip up Coach Lowman's boys as Wisconsin is the only Big Ten school on the Tech schedule.

Coach A. J. Robertson of the Peoria Hippopocampus has made an impressive record in baseball the past few seasons. His club has been near the top of the Little Nineteen standing consistently. The red and white nine is easily the class in minor college baseball throughout central Illinois.

It is not unlikely that Coach Lowman will start one of his sophomores against Bradley this afternoon. The leader, the rangy sophomore, who won two games out of two starts on the southern trip will likely draw the assignment. He hurled thirteen innings on the training jaunt and was touched for only nine scattered hits and two runs.

Alumni and Massey turned in some brilliant defensive work in the southern encounter—the latter accepting 25 chances in the field with only one miscue to his discredit. Decker leads the list in hitting to date with an average of .400, while Massey, his neighbor in the infield has been clotting the ball at a .333 clip. This hitting strength of the infield will be a valuable asset when the Badger outfielders hit their stride.

Burbridge, Larson and Donagan will form the regular outfield and will appear in their positions against Bradley. Burbridge collected more extra base wallops than any of his mates on the southern trip, connecting for a home run and a three base hit. He also scored five runs—trailing the lead-off scorer, Decker, by one tally. Donagan is the outstanding base stealer of the Badger crew, having pilfered five bases to date.

With its edict that the dribble hereafter be limited to a single bounce, broke unexpectedly here Friday night in a verbal clash between Dr. Forrest C. Allen, athletic director at the University of Kansas and R. G. Reynolds, a member of the rules committee who are attending meetings of the American Physical Education association.

Dr. Allen criticized the action of the rules committee and challenged by its right to introduce an "epochal change in the game without consent of the coaches and players concerned."

Mr. Reynolds, who is a member of the rules committee contended that the new rule would be approved by a majority of coaches. This statement was challenged by Dr. Allen who took a poll of the crowd and found only one coach favoring the new rule.

Dr. Allen expressed belief that rules committee had "railroaded" the dribble legislation through without giving coaches an opportunity to express their opinions.

WORK MAKES "OPEN DOOR" HIS POLICY

Washington. —(AP)—Secretary Herbert Work literally adheres to an "open-door" policy in his elaborately appointed office in the Interior Department.

Unlike his fellow cabinet members, who keep strictly to pre-arranged appointments, and carry on their daily tasks behind closed doors, all one needs to do to see the Secretary is to walk right in and await the secretary's pleasure. The massive oak doors to his office are always open.

It took some time to get used to the idea, but now even senators and representatives have given up the habit of calling him on the telephone for an appointment.

Dr. Work's first official act as Interior secretary after serving a year as Postmaster General, was a statement that "there shall be no submerged or camouflaged policies, no issues tucked away behind smoke screens, but an open and frank exposition of all actions deemed essential to the public interest."

He believes in the "open-door" policy "so that the public may look in, if it wishes, to see its own business transacted."

FRENCH POET SCOFFS AT SUPERNATURAL FICTION

London.—(AP)—Walter de la Mare, the poet and novelist, got a broad smile out of Sir Oliver Lodge when he mentioned in a recent lecture on "The Supernatural in Fiction" that scientific development has made so many things real which had been thought unreal "that tomorrow we may see Queen Elizabeth scolding Sir Arthur Conan Doyle."

The charm of material truths revealed through insubstantial fancies was emphasized by Mr. de la Mare. He said convictions are "always far less interesting than our superstitions."

"What company is more tragic," he asked, "than that of a man who can explain everything."

"If a bottle taps on the wall we delight in calling it the 'death watch.' And if we pass under a ladder safely we thank our lucky stars and 'touch wood.'"

CLEANLINESS IS LARGE FACTOR AT HAMM POP FACTORY

Each Bottle Is Thoroughly Washed Before It Is Filled With Beverage

Absolute cleanliness is stressed in bottling beverages at the W. Hamm and Son Pop factory, 622 N. Division-st., according to J. F. Hamm, manager. Strictest attention is paid to every detail of the work and each process is carefully worked out so that every bottle containing the finished product is guaranteed pure.

Before bottles are refilled after being used once they go through a cleansing machine which they receive 22 distinct washings. Hot water is applied to the bottle inside and out and a caustic solution insures thorough cleansing. Each of the 22 washings completely wash each bottle and before they are finally taken from the washing machine to be filled they are rinsed several times with cold water to remove all the caustic solution. As soon as the bottles appear on an endless chain after being thoroughly washed they are immediately refilled with beverage to further insure cleansing of the bottles.

Each bottle remains in the washing machine from 10 to 12 minutes. They are fitted on an endless chain which rotates the bottles throughout the machine.

The stoppers used in the bottle are shipped to the factory in sealed, drop cases to insure their cleanliness. The packages are not opened until the corker is to be used.

The water used in making the pop comes from a tested private well and is filtered properly to thus further safeguard the cleanliness. It passes entirely through closed pipes after being filtered. All flavors and syrups used for flavoring are guaranteed pure by the company that manufactures them and they also are filtered before being used. Even the cases containing the bottles are re-washed each time they return to the pop factory.

The Hamm factory originated in New London many years ago when William Hamm, who owned the first small pop shop there. He owned the first crown sealing machine in this section of the state and in fact the third in the state, it is said. This crown sealer still is a part of the equipment at the Hamm factory although an automatic filler and sealer now do this part of the work.

Pop in all popular flavors including orange, grape, lime, lemon, cherry, root beer and gingerale are manufactured in both the carbonated and the still types.

LUMBER MOVEMENT IS LAGGING SLIGHTLY

In its weekly review of the lumber market, the American Lumberman, Chicago, says:

"Although prospects for lumber trade are becoming increasingly bright, the movement for the present is lagging a little. Retail trade has been prevented from developing because of bad weather in many sections of the country, extensive storm and flood damage having occurred last week in the South, with unfavorable conditions continuing in the North and East. Yet March construction contracts awarded have broken all previous records for any month, and exceeded those for March of last year by sixteen per cent. There has been a steady gain since the dull period in January, and totals for the year to date are only four and a half per cent behind those for last year with reports on contemplated new construction indicating further gains.

Softwood mills to date this year have produced less lumber than they did in the first thirteen weeks of last year. Their sales this year have amounted to thirteen per cent more than their production, the same excess as for this period last year. Bookings held to this percentage of cut during the week ended April 2. Prices of the principal species have kept the firmness they developed in the last couple of weeks, and buyers are willingly paying the advances they put into effect. Manufacturers feel that quotations are still too low. Buyers keep closely to current needs, which are not large, because of handicaps on consumption in the building trades. Mill stocks are being reduced, but not by as large amounts as might be expected at this season, though it is believed that a few weeks of good weather would cause a heavy drain on them.

The hardwood output of the South, amounting to about six-sevenths of the total included in reports, has shown a further decline because of rainstorms and floods in producing territory, and during the week ended April 2 it amounted to only seventy-one per cent of normal. Bookings by the southern mills so far this year have amounted to fourteen per cent more than their production, as compared with eleven per cent more in the corresponding period of last year. This is the season of highest output for the northern hardwood mills, and bookings to date have taken sixty-four per cent of the cut, which is a slight improvement over last year's record of sixty-three per cent above. Although there has been a good movement of hardwood to automobile plants, furniture trade suffers from the poor weather, and building trades demand is still slow, especially for flooring. Hardwood prices have remained at levels which are unsatisfactory to the mills.

More than one-fourth of the cotton raised in the United States comes from Texas. Sheep raising increased 50 per cent there in the last ten years. An old Irish legend of about 944 A. D. gives an account of a vision of a ship or airplane in the sky.

Insurance Attractive As Investment Or Occupation

Babson Park, Mass.—Roger W. Babson this week concludes his ten interviews on "Your Boy's Business" with some very interesting statements regarding the insurance business. Mr. Babson's conclusions are as follows:

FOR WHAT IS YOUR SON FITTED?
Let me again repeat that it is very important for parents and teachers to get boys into the one group of occupations for which they are best fitted. There are only a few of these groups and it is usually a simple matter to select the one in which a boy will best succeed. Furthermore, his health, prosperity, and happiness depend upon selecting the right one. These five groups are:

(1) Professional Group, including law, medicine, journalism, art, education, church, and civic work.
(2) Agricultural Group, including farming, forestry, horticulture, etc.
(3) Construction Group, including building, contracting, mining, etc.
(4) Manufacturing Group, including all kinds of mechanical work.
(5) Merchandising Group, including banking, insurance, wholesaling, retailing, advertising, and canvassing.

I have never yet seen a boy who could not succeed in one of these five groups. Most boys are far better suited for one group than for another. No boy was ever bright enough to be able to succeed in all of them. Most failures are due to boys getting in the wrong group. A parent can best ascertain for which group his boy has talent by having him work for five summers during each summer to a different group.

For instance, he could spend the first summer in a hospital or in a newspaper office; the second summer on a farm; the third summer as time keeper on a construction job; the fourth summer in a factory; and the fifth summer canvassing and household peddling. If the boy starts his summer work when graduating from grammar school, he will have completed the process of elimination when he is through high school.

MERCANTILE OPPORTUNITIES
Boys who love to peddle and canvass usually make the greatest success in business life. Boys who love to sell tickets, newspapers and books usually develop into very successful business men. Boys who love to sell goods should enter the Professional Group. To be a real successful farmer, builder, or manufacturer, a man must be willing to "sell." In the last analysis the successful man is he who can sell or move the products of the farm or factory who finds and secures the market for his products and other jobs. The woods are full of men who can raise or make things after the order, but the men are few who can get those orders. Hence those latter become the real business leaders and the rest gradually follow the employ of the successful man. The goods or get the contracts. Hence, the fifth test is not only important of itself but it often shows whether a young man should go into some of the other groups. Certainly it will show whether he is or is not a salesman.

The principle involved above is one which investors should remember when buying insurance. Companies which only manufacture and depend upon other concerns to sell their products, are usually not good investments. This explains the difficulty with many New England mills which depend upon "agents" to sell their products. In the other hand, this principle explains the great profit which has come to holders of chain store securities.

The most successful industrial stocks have been those of purely manufacturing companies which manufacture nothing but are always able to sell their products. The great principle which has come to holders of chain store securities.

The insurance business is a good business; and lucky are both investors and employees who are connected therewith. 1927 Publishers Financial Bureau.

MINISTER HAS FORMULA TO HELP LOST SAILORS

Washington. —(AP)—Many stirring tales have been suggested by the terrors which beset shipwrecked seamen, unable to determine their position.

Their plight has usually been due to inability to observe the sun at noon, solar time. Now, however, naval authorities in all parts of the world are showing great interest in a formula worked out by the Rev. Alan S. Hawkesworth of the Protestant Episcopal church, who served as a minister in the Navy's Bureau of Ordnance during the World War.

"By extant observation on the two stars forming the pointer of the Great Bear, or the upright of the Southern Cross," he explains, "a navigator can tell his exact position at any moment during the night. And eastward sailors with no sextant or other instrument can approximately but definitely tell their positions within 10 or 15 miles, thus avoiding the horrors of aimless drifting."

"In the northern hemisphere (for instance) imagine a huge clock-face around the Pole star, with 12 above and six below—in the usual fashion. Take as our hour hand upon this imaginary clock-face the stars called the 'Pointers' and the Great Bear or Dipper. Read the hour indicated there by, and add to it the number of months and fractions of the month elapsed since January 1. Double this sum, and subtract it from 524, or 254 of 44, the test for which of these three constants we must use being that the remainder must be positive, yet less than 24. The result will be the true solar time—reckoned from midnight—with 12 to 24 P. M. time."

of great benefit to those who buy, then the salesmen and the company prosper. One stock to all others is the extent that we serve. Because insurance readers such lasting benefits is the reason for the great prosperity of insurance companies today.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF INSURANCE
Insurance is divided into three main divisions, namely 1 Casualty Insurance, which includes fire, hurricane, flood, burglary and earthquake risks; 2 Life and Accident Insurance which includes all forms of personal insurance; and 3 Liability Insurance which gives protection against damage suits and losses from branches of contracts and other causes. The great growth during recent years has been in the last two groups. Life insurance has made special strides in connection with the sale of "business insurance."

Yet the insurance field is not over crowded. All the reliable companies are growing rapidly. Investors in these companies are well protected. The good salesmen in the employ of these companies are doing well.

Insurance stocks are not listed on the New York Stock Exchange because there is not sufficient trading in them. Those owning them want to hold rather than sell them. There are, however, brokers in New York, Boston, Hartford, and other cities who specialize in insurance stocks. These stocks are also constantly being sold by the big auctioneers such as listing operated by Adams H. Muller & Sons in New York and R. L. Day & Co. in Boston. Among the most popular stocks are the Travelers' Life, the Hartford Fire Insurance company and the Fidelity Casualty. These three companies represent the three different types of insurance.

Hence an investor who bought these three stocks would have an interest in every class of insurance business. Mention these companies only as illustrations for there are many other companies which are just as good. When times are good wages high and money easy, all kinds of insurance business prosper. This fact has been another reason for the great increase in insurance which has taken place during the past few years. Whether or not the present rate of increase is more than the future can tell.

It rather looks as if insurance men would be obliged to work harder for a sale during the next few years than they have worked in the past. When any kind of business comes hard, the costs of securing new business are high. Hence, the insurance business is a good business; and lucky are both investors and employees who are connected therewith. 1927 Publishers Financial Bureau.

STUDENTS NEED TUNED PIANOS, SAYS AUTHORITY

Urges Teachers Not to Neglect Ear Training in Music Courses

The condition of pianos in American homes indicates a general carelessness concerning music, and the teacher who does not pay attention to ear training is doing little to develop the musical spirit of students, according to Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, one of the outstanding figures in the musical field of music today. Elmer Cole, piano tuner, 1313 S. Lawrence, quotes Dr. Spaeth in urging that the piano be kept in tune at all times.

It is a part of the responsibility of every teacher of piano to see that his pupils have adequate instrumental facilities at home as well as during the actual time of the lesson. Mr. Cole points out. The best teaching in the world may be seriously handicapped if the piano standards of the pupil are neglected during his progress.

The assumption that "anything is good enough for the beginner" is dangerous. It not only handicaps the child but may lead to an actual distaste for music, since its potential beauty is given no opportunity to assert itself.

Playing on pianos which are constantly out of tune may easily dull the sense of hearing to such an extent that correct pitch is no longer recognized, Mr. Cole points out. The teacher should use every influence possible to have the pupils play only on pianos in good condition. If the financial circumstances of the family make it difficult to secure a desirable instrument it would, in some cases, be better to stop the lessons altogether. Dr. Spaeth says.

There are three reasons why pianos get out of tune, according to Dr. Spaeth. First, steel wires, constantly under the strain of tension, gradually stretch. Second, a light back or plate will bend or bow under the heavy tension. Also, lowering the pitch. This is the change in the wood in general and in the sounding board and bridges in particular. These changes are due to variations in humidity which can both lower and raise the pitch.

STEEL PRODUCTION HOLDS GOOD PACE

Rate Is Only Slightly Under Record Mark of March, Says Review

Cleveland, O.—IRON TRADE REVIEW says:

Production of finished steel is proceeding at a rate only slightly under the record pace of March. Incoming business is lighter in many lines, forecasting contraction in the future, but at the moment the carryover of tonnage from last month is a sustaining influence.

The unshifted tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corp. is illuminating. In March, 1926, when steel ingot output reached a peak of 166,336 tons daily, the order book of this leading interest shrank 235,587 tons. But in March, 1927, when steel ingot production attained an all-time daily high of 168,867 tons, unshifted tonnage fell off 42,979 tons.

The expectation, therefore, is that the seasonal drift to lower levels of production will be more gentle this year. At present the steelmaking rate is about 90 per cent, compared with the record of 94.1 per cent of March; last year the contraction was from 92.5 per cent in March to 88.3 per cent in April.

The hesitancy of new business to come forward has already intensified competitive effort. Some producers have become less discriminating in quoting extreme minimum prices normally applying only to attractive or tonnage orders. In some directions easier credit terms have been granted. A generalization that prices are weaker would be too sweeping, but more irregularities have developed and the spotty character of the market is accentuated.

The Connellsville coke market strikingly portrays what a negligible factor the bituminous coal-strike is at this time. Apathy of consumers has driven furnace coke down 10 to 25 cents, and the foundry grade is off 25 cents.

ENGLISH LORD ENJOYS HONOR SELLING SCANDAL

Epsom, England. —(AP)—Lord Rosebery calls himself "an old foggy," but he is one of the liveliest eighty-year-olds in England and is thoroughly enjoying the commotion he aroused by demanding that Mr. Lloyd George tell the world how he got the millions of pounds he is supposed to hold for the Liberal Party.

Lord Rosebery's query as to whether the large sums held by Lloyd George came from the sale of honors, has revived the clamor for more information about how much war profits ers paid for their titles. Lloyd George, however, has remained constantly mum about the amount of and origin of the fund he holds for the disintegrating Liberal Party.

Lord Rosebery leads a quiet life at "The Durdans," which is near the famous Epsom race course. He drives daily in fine weather and amuses himself keeping in touch with the world of affairs from which he has stood apart for nearly 15 years.

With a collection of 2,500,000 specimens, representing 115,000 species, the Smithsonian Institution in Washington qualifies as the world's largest "bughouse."

tractor Says

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The new addition of the Borden company's building will be completed in the next thirty days, Frank Schoenrock, Jr., contractor who has been in charge of the building said Friday. The north and south walls have been completed, and the setting of fifty piers, which are supporting beams for the roof, was begun on Saturday. Mr. Schoenrock stated that with these piers in place the work of laying the cement floor will go on.

The building, which is to be used as a storage for canned milk, is being erected at the west end of the factory building proper. It is of brick construction, 100 feet wide by 170 feet long. Since the water of the Wolf river has receded, no difficulty has been encountered in the building plans. Fifteen workmen are at labor on the job, and there have been no pauses in the work because of inclement weather.

Lumber for the roofing will be shipped from the state of Washington, Mr. Schoenrock declared. This roofing will be insulated and roofing material will then be laid over the whole. The building must be both fire and air proof because of the uses to which it is to be put.

Careful plans for the building were made to avoid destroying the shrubbery with which the grounds are planted. The building will stand just inside the hedges which were planted several years ago.

NEW LONDON
PERSONALS

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Miller and children of Waupaca, spent a part of Friday in this city. Mrs. Owens P. Cuff and little son who spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben, where the little boy underwent treatment, have returned to their home here.

FUERST BOY BREAKS
ARM AND COLLAR-BONE

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—Merlyn, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fuerst, narrowly escaped fatal injury Friday morning when he fell as he was following a cat crusher on the Fuerst farm at Maple Creek Friday morning. The machine was being driven by Carlton Götterdau of this city, who was spending his Easter vacation as a guest on the farm. Just as the accident happened it is not known, but it is probable that the little lad in running along by the side of the machine slipped and fell with his right arm extending out in the path of the machine, as he received injuries only to that member. The right collar-bone was broken and the right arm broken in two places. That the arm was not crushed probably was due to the fact that the ground was soft and freshly plowed.

EVELYN SWEENEY IS HURT IN EXPLOSIONPresence of Mind Prevents Serious Injury When Gasoline
Line Takes Fire

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—While cleaning a dress with gasoline at her home Friday shortly after the noon hour, Miss Evelyn Sweeney escaped serious burns by her presence of mind. The vessel containing the inflammable liquid was placed on the back of the kitchen stove in which fire was burning. While she was in the midst of cleaning the garment, an explosion occurred scattering the burning liquid over Miss Sweeney's clothing. She ran to the bed room and wrapped herself in some bedding and laid down on the floor and rolled, thus extinguishing the flames, but not until after she had been severely burned about the chest and arms. While the burns are not considered serious, Miss Sweeney will be confined to her home for some time.

Miss Sweeney is employed in a confectionery store at Hortonville and was spending her Easter vacation in her home here. She was alone in the house at the time of the accident.

KIWANIS EXPECTS BIG CONVENTION

Approximately 3,000 Already Have Made Reservations at Hotels

Latest reports from the Kiwanis International convention office at Memphis, Tenn., show that nearly 3,000 Kiwanians already have made hotel reservations and other arrangements to attend the eleventh annual convention, June 6 to 9, according to Frank Catlin, secretary of the Appleton club. Mr. Catlin and Dr. E. L. Bolton, local president, will attend the Memphis convention as delegates, and several other local Kiwanians may be present.

"Judging from the registrations and general conditions, Kiwanis will have its largest and most successful convention this year," said Merton S. Heiss, convention manager, Wednesday. "Never before have plans been so effectively carried out to make a Kiwanis convention a success. Not only is Kiwanis ready to welcome the visitors but also the city of Memphis. The Kiwanians and visitors who come here in June will have the opportunity of experiencing southern hospitality and witness some of the customs of the old South."

Ralph A. Amerman, of Scranton, Penn., president of Kiwanis International, and George W. Zelger, of Philadelphia, Penn., in charge of the convention program, are both enthusiastic over the speed in which plans are being carried out to entertain and assist Kiwanians and guests in June. "Every member will find the June convention of interest to all International. We have arranged our convention sessions to adequately care for all Kiwanis business affairs and our entertainment will be both novel and typically southern," says Mr. Amerman. The social engagements of the convention will include a religious musical, All Kiwanis Night, Memphis Night and a reception to the International president. Memphians will aid during the entire convention in entertaining the guests. During the afternoon business sessions for Kiwanians, all ladies will be guests at special social occasions.
